America's National Game

By A. G. SPALDING

PRICE, $2.00 NET

A book of 600 pages, profusely illustrated with over 100 full page engravings, and having sixteen forceful cartoons by Homer C. Davenport, the famous American artist.

No man in America is better equipped to write on all the varied phases of the National Game than is A. G. Spalding. His observation and experience began when the game was young. He gained fame as a pitcher forty years ago, winning a record as player that has never yet been equalled. He was associated with the management of the pastime through trying years of struggle against prevailing evils. He opposed the gamblers; he fought to eradicate drunkenness; he urged and introduced new and higher ideals for the sport; he was quick to see that ball playing and the business management of clubs, at the same time and by the same men, were impracticable; he knew that ball players might be quite competent as magnates, but not while playing the game; he was in the forefront of the fight against syndicating Base Ball and making of a Nation's pastime a sordid Trust; he was the pioneer to lead competing American Base Ball teams to a foreign land; he took two champion teams to Great Britain in 1874, and two others on a tour of the world in 1888-9; he was present at the birth of the National League, and has done as much as any living American to uphold and prolong the life of this great pioneer Base Ball organization.

When A. G. Spalding talks about America's National Game he speaks by authority of that he does know, because he has been in the councils of the management whenever there have been times of strenuous endeavor to purge it from abuses and keep it clean for the people of America—

—young and old

In this work Mr. Spalding, after explaining the causes that led him into the undertaking, begins with the inception of the sport; shows how it developed, by natural stages from a boy with a ball to eighteen men, ball, bats and bases; gives credit for the first scientific application of system to the playing of the game to Abner Doubleday, of Coopers-town, N. Y.; treats of the first Base Ball club; shows how rowdiness terrorized the sport in its early days; how gambling and drunkenness brought the pastime into disfavor with the masses, and how early organizations were unable to control the evils that insidiously crept in. He then draws a series of very forceful pictures of the struggle to eradicate gambling, drunkenness and kindred evils, and shows how the efforts of strong men accomplished the salvation of the great American game and placed it in the position it occupies to-day—the most popular outdoor pastime in the world.

Interspersed throughout this interesting book are reminiscences of Mr. Spalding's own personal observations and experiences in the game as player, manager and magnate, covering a period of many years. Some of these stories deal with events of great import to Base Ball, and others have to do with personal acts and characteristics of players prominent in the game in earlier days—old time favorites like Harry and George Wright, A. C. Anson, Mike Kelly, Billy Sunday and others.

This book should be in the library of every father in the land, for it shows how his boy may be built up physically and morally through a high-class pastime. It should be in the hands of every lad in America, for it demonstrates the possibilities to American youth of rising to heights of eminent material success through a determined adherence to things that make for the upbuilding of character in organizations as well as of men.

The foot ball season of 1911 will go down in history as one of miracles. In fact, aside from the sudden transformation of teams from losing teams to victorious teams, and vice versa, even the ball finally began to take part in the extraordinary happenings, and on one day, namely, the day of the Princeton - Dartmouth and Andover - Exeter games, in each of which games the ball performed what would seem to be a miracle, namely, running along the ground for a considerable distance and then bounding up over the crossbar. In the case of the Princeton - Dartmouth game this ball was started by a partially missed drop-kick and thus went over forty yards, hitting the ground occasionally before it struck on its end on some irregularity and leaped up over the goal bar. Then, too, the favorites in a very great proportion of the important games were returned eventually as the losers; nor was there any consistency about these upsets, but they came in the most unexpected ways and upon extraordinary occasions. Not only were teams inconsistent in their work, but also individuals. Men who had played steadily through the season until some important game suddenly seemed to lose their perspective and, hence, their effectiveness. This was true in several positions. The principal contests of the year were won and lost through a fumble or a fluke. None of the other work counted. Harvard lost her game to Princeton while attempting a drop-kick under Princeton's goal. Yale lost her game to Princeton, when well into Princeton's territory, by a slip of the ball going through the full-back's hands and being picked up by the Princeton end, who ran the entire two-thirds of the length of the field for a touchdown. Nor could his presence on the spot be regarded as providential for Princeton, for it was his habit. This young man White was the same one who ran two-thirds of the length of the field for Princeton's touchdown against Harvard after a drop-kick. Princeton defeated Dartmouth by the kick already mentioned earlier in this article, the ball traveling forty-five yards and then bounding over the bar. Harvard defeated Dartmouth by a blocked kick. Wisconsin tied Minnesota, Capron scoring Minnesota's touchdown by running back the initial kick-off, and Moll later running half the length of the field for a touchdown for Wisconsin. True it is that on two important Saturdays the weather was atrocious and the fields in wretched condition. Usually for the important games of late years the conditions have been good.

The forward pass took no more prominent position than of old; in fact, in the late games considerably less. It resulted in disaster on one or two occasions in contests that meant a good deal. It was not productive of any spectacular plays. The on-side kick has been, as always, a matter of luck; that is, if the ball bounds straight the defensive side secures possession of it easily and the side on the attack has lost several yards on the kick. That is the difference between the long kick and the short one. If, on the other hand, the ball performs a freak antic and either jumps sidewise or hits on the end and bounds clear over the defensive man's head, the play results in a fine gain for the kicker's side, possibly even in a touchdown at very little expenditure of effort. But who can tell which way the ball will bound? Surely no scientific study or daily practice can forecast the action of this leather sphere.

There seems to be a wide diversity of opinion on the matter of the rules so far as physical injuries are concerned, which only a more careful analysis at the end of the season can really determine. Without statistical information it seems as if injuries to the hand, arm, and shoulder had been more prevalent last year than before, but injuries to the body or spine much less.

The officials, on the whole, did a good job. There was in mid-season too great laxity in two respects, namely, allowing the man attempting to block the kick to run into the kicker after he had gotten the ball away and allowing pushing and pulling, chiefly pushing of the runner after he reached the line. If men in the back-field follow the runner into the line he endeavors to go through, nine times out of ten they must, even if they keep their hands off him, eventually push him, for he is stopped when they are still running forward and they go against him.

There was also too much interference in the neutral zone on forward passing. It was rather strange that the officials seemed to be more intent upon this in the case of a kick than in the case of a forward pass, for the man receiving the pass is very apt to be bumped, not hard, but simply by a man putting himself in his way, and it was seldom called by the officials. All these matters improved somewhat toward the end of the season, but need considerable emphasis yet.

Punting and drop-kicking were exceptionally good, and the kicking from placement, particularly in the case of the Indians and in some of the Western teams, held its own. Considering the first mentioned, punting, it is doubtful if there ever were in any one season on the gridiron so many good average kickers, and these men were forced to kick, many of them under most trying conditions of weather and field. Drop-kicking, too, was good, but risky. In the Princeton-Harvard game, for instance, each team had a drop-kick blocked, one resulting in a touchdown against them, and the other would have resulted in a similar disaster had the man who picked up the ball been fast enough to keep away from his pursuers. There was nothing between him and the goal line. The drop-kick made by De Witt, which resulted in Princeton's victory over Dartmouth, will pass down into foot ball history as the most extraordinary since the introduction of the sport. It has already been described, and it is safe to say that no kick ever gave rise during a few hours after it had been made to so widespread a discussion. It should be stated that kicks of a similar character, although by no means so remarkable, have resulted in scores previously, and in fact the case had been discussed by the Rules Committee, although no such extraordinary happening as in this case had ever come before them. Probably a satisfactory solution of the difficulty will be attained by a rule to the effect that the ball, after it once takes its flight, must not again hit the ground before it passes over the goal bar or over either post. The reason for not allowing the touching of the ball by an opponent to vitiate the kick is the difficulty of ruling upon this. It would be easy enough for an official to see that the ball was struck by an uplifted hand or arm in case the ball were deflected, but a man might easily touch the ball with his finger tips and he alone be sure that he had thus touched it.

The season will certainly give rise to a very considerable discussion of the present rules, and a party that advocates an increased number of downs—four instead of three all over the field, or at least within the 25-yard line—will gain many adherents.

The rules forbidding tackling below the knees and decreeing that the ball is dead when any part of a man except his feet touches the ground when in the grasp of an opponent should be either modified or enforced.

Meantime public interest in the sport seems to be still on the increase. The impossibility of taking care of those who have a presupposed right to see the big games is pressing harder and harder upon the management and increased seating capacity is demanded. The fact that the players and former players are not satisfied with the game as it is has seemed to have very little influence upon the desire of the general public to witness the big contests, and it is also true that contests regarded as minor in former years are beginning to draw almost as much attention as the big games did eight or ten years ago. The game is played more generally in the schools and on vacant lots during the fall season, and it seems that the elimination of pushing and pulling and the possibility of at least partially successful methods with this elimination have enhanced its value to the immature players.

Princeton, after many years of depression, in several of which the early part of her season would be particularly prosperous and she would start in the lead in her championship game with Yale only to lose it, came to her own at last in 1911, defeating Harvard 8 to 6 and Yale 6 to 3. This was the first year of the renewal of relations between Princeton and Harvard. Hence, it was all the more a satisfaction for Princeton to continue the work where she laid it down years ago. Dartmouth played remarkably close games with both Harvard and Princeton, in each case a fluke changing the games from ties into defeats. Brown started off well, defeating Pennsylvania, but running up against both Harvard and Yale when these two were at the top of their game. Carlisle did some really excellent work, but had her own little downfall, too, at the hands of Syracuse. Penn State played sterling foot ball. The Army and Navy plugged along with consistent standard conservatism, which stood them in good stead and was probably as wise a method as any. In fact, one of the best ways to summarize the season's lessons is to start with the Army and Navy as a basis of good foot ball without frills, view Carlisle as the type of team that will take the biggest chances on attack, and Princeton as the type of team that took no chances on attack: in fact, practically ignored that end of the game altogether. The Carlisle-Harvard game and the Princeton-Yale game are good examples of these two widely divergent policies. Carlisle took every chance and scored 18 points on Harvard (more than twice as many as did Princeton), but meantime Harvard scored 15 points on her. In the Yale-Princeton game, Princeton never scored a first down or carried the ball into Yale's territory, and Princeton defeated Yale 6 to 3. Minnesota had one of the best running attacks of the year, and Yale had a similar one, but Minnesota's attack was neutralized in the Wisconsin game by field conditions, as was Yale's. Yale could carry the ball into Princeton's territory, and in the totals on kicks gained an average of between two and three yards to the kick, yet could not get near enough to register upon the score board save by a drop-kick, and defeated herself by a missed pass when well up in Princeton's territory, the ubiquitous Princeton end, White, picking the ball up after the Yale full-back had tried to fall on it, and running the length of the field for a touchdown and victory.

Certainly there were as many strange happenings in the foot ball world as among the individual players. The teams of the Middle West were inconsistent. Minnesota showed the greatest strength as well as the greatest consistency, but was tied by Wisconsin in the final game. Michigan had many upsets, the most depressing having been the defeat by Cornell. Chicago, after being defeated by Minnesota no less than 30 to 0, turned about and defeated Cornell: while Syracuse, defeated decisively by Yale, checked the Carlisle Indians, who had defeated Pennsylvania and Harvard. In other words, in the two greatest divisions in general foot ball, the East and the Middle West, there was such a total lack of consistency as to bring very forcibly home the question whether quality can be developed under the present methods to an extent that may give some reasonable assurance of success. Games were played in both these sections, as well as the South and Southwest, that would indicate there is some truth in the statement of a very successful coach that if you threw the ball around enough you could beat anybody.

On being asked to define his meaning, he explained that the chances were so strongly against a consistent succession of successful running plays—the rules rendering practically all the defense necessary—that the thing to do was to utilize as many downs as possible in giving chances both to his own side to secure the ball after a forward pass and for the other side to make errors. On the last Saturday of the season of 1911, when every one was waiting to place the final stamp of approval or disapproval on rules, teams, and individuals, came really the most depressing and unsatisfactory results—Brown was tied by Trinity, Michigan was tied by Nebraska, Kansas was tied by Missouri, Yale was tied by Harvard, while the Navy, with a weaker running attack, scored a field goal on the Army. That ending convinced a large majority that four downs are necessary to give a test of superiority.

Taking up the individual qualifications of those who make up the All-America team of 1911, I would summarize the players as follows:

Ends—Probably to no one man in the foot ball world came such chances as came to S. White, the end of the Princeton team, and certainly no one else took the same advantage of them. He ran two-thirds the length of the field for a touchdown in the Harvard game and performed the same feat in the Yale game, besides in the Harvard game covering a kick in such a way as to force Harvard to a safety. These were the notable achievements that stood out, but the work which gives him the right to an All-America end is quite as distinctive in other details. He took the field splendidly on kicks, and was very deft in picking up the loose ball, two of the most valuable qualities in an end.

Bomeisler of Yale came like a whirlwind in the last month, making almost a second Kilpatrick of himself. Powerful, thick-set, and fast, he is of the same type as that star, while experience and waiting had their effect upon him, so that when after a long rest from injury he started in in November he became a terror to his opponents.

Tackles—Hart of Princeton found his normal position in the line when he went to tackle. His work in the back-field in former years had been good, but not nearly as valuable to his team as having him in the line of tackle. He is big, powerful, aggressive, fast, with a good eye for the ball, and with all this is fast in getting down the field under kicks. His own individual work was responsible for quite a lot of that splendid line defense which Princeton presented to her opponents.

Devore of the Army played a strong and consistent game throughout the season. He is quick for a big man and has much foot ball sense, which is very valuable in the tackle's position. He is not easily fooled and is strong on interference in breaking the line for his own run.

Guards—Fisher of Harvard kept up the good work that made him an All-America guard in 1910. It is true he was tried at tackle at times, but some one at Cambridge realized that they might spoil an All-America guard in order to make a mediocre tackle, and he was therefore returned to his position at guard. Powerful at interference on the attack, well-built and aggressive, he carried out his promise of the previous year.

Duff of Princeton was, together with Hart, one of the mainstays of the Orange and Black's excellent defensive line: aggressive but not too eager, he generally located the ball with precision, and was a very serious obstacle to the attack of the opponents. He was also quick in breaking through.

Centers—Ketcham of Yale was one of the most reliable centers of the year, with splendid ability to pass and protect his backs, and, in addition to this, by far the most active of the centers in ground-covering, both on attack and defense. He was on the ball like a hound every minute and recovered blocked kicks and fumbles as though he had an uncanny notion of where the ball would be.

Bluthenthal of Princeton was a close second to Ketcham for the pivotal position and a great asset to Princeton in his defensive work.

Quarters—Howe of Yale, although it was necessary to spare him slightly on account of condition, never failed in the chief games. In the Brown contest he kicked no less than three field goals, and it was his foot which enabled Yale to register the three points against Princeton in their game. More than that, on the slippery field he showed the best ability of any of the backs of either side to run back kicks. He fumbled kicks in the Princeton game, but he could have avoided this if he desired, as he was not called upon to catch the ball, but made desperate attempts on the low ones, hoping to get started for a run back. It was not bad but good foot ball to thus try them.

Backs—Wendell of Harvard, although not as showy in his work as in 1910, and not taking perhaps quite the distances, owing to the support of a weaker line, was nevertheless individually the hardest plunging half-back last year, thick-set, stocky, while not overfast, he was a hard man to stop when once started, and had a peculiar way of wriggling out of the tackle's grasp that was most disconcerting.

Thorpe of the Carlisle Indians was probably one of the most dangerous men to opponents that played in the back-field last year; a good runner on straight runs and wide runs; good at circling the ends; a first-class kicker, and a kicker of placement goals, as well as powerful on the attack, he can be rated at the highest. Then when it came to defense he was equally good, especially being a dangerous man when he went up on the line, as he did occasionally to hurry the opponents' kick.

Dalton of the Navy is a powerful plunger, reliable in every respect, and could spell with Howe on this team as a kicker.

Some Representative Teams and Their Work in 1911

HARVARD—YALE.

The Harvard-Yale game was played at Cambridge under somewhat slippery conditions of field, due to the rain of the previous day leaving the soil somewhat greasy, although everything had been done that was possible to give a fair footing to the players. The game seesawed up and down, Yale having a chance fairly early in the game to score and Harvard later having a similar chance for a field kick. The punting on both sides, when relieving the goal, was strong, but neither side could secure a sufficient advantage to become dangerous, and the game ended just as had the game the year before, without score by either side.

PRINCETON—YALE.

This game was played on a field of mud and slime, which caused the players to become almost unrecognizable after a few plunges. Yale was considerably stronger in the running game and in the early part had the play in Princeton's territory, when a miss of the snapback by the Yale full-back resulted in a fumble, and White, the Princeton end, who had made a similar play in the Princeton-Harvard game, secured the ball and ran two-thirds the length of the field, was tackled by the Yale captain just outside the goal, but slid over for a touchdown, which was converted into a goal. Yale later secured a field goal and during the latter part of the game had the play largely in Princeton's territory, but Princeton's defense was too strong for further scoring, and the game resulted in a victory for Princeton by the score of 6 to 3.

HARVARD—PRINCETON.

For the first time since 1896 Harvard scheduled a game with Princeton. The score in 1896 was 12 to 0 in Princeton's favor, but last year the indications seemed to be that Harvard would triumph. Princeton, however, put up the best game her team had played up to that point in the season, the defense being particularly good. White, the Princeton end, romped away with a touchdown from a blocked kick, running two-thirds the length of the field, a performance which he repeated in the Yale game. Harvard later scored a touchdown, but also made a safety, so that the final score was 8 to 6 in favor of Princeton.

PRINCETON—DARTMOUTH.

The Princeton-Dartmouth game, which had resulted in a victory for Princeton by the score of 6 to 0 in 1910, proved a most stubborn contest, each side becoming threatening at times, but not being able to secure the necessary score. Finally, Princeton had an opportunity for a long field kick, but the ball was kicked low. Just, however, as the danger for Dartmouth seemed averted, the ball, which was running along the ground, struck on its end and took a bound over the goal bar, thus by the rules scoring a field goal and giving Princeton the victory by the score of 3 to 0.

PENNSYLVANIA—CORNELL.

The Pennsylvania-Cornell game promised in its early part to be a closer contest than the game of the year before, for although Pennsylvania took the lead, Cornell crept up until it looked as if it might be a very close thing. In the last period, however, Pennsylvania now having secured a lead, seemed to take a new lease of life and played the best foot ball of her season, winning out by a score of no less than 21 to 9.

BROWN—PENNSYLVANIA.

Brown's team, which has often played its poorest game against Pennsylvania, this time seemed to overcome stage fright and played the kind of game that they generally put up against Harvard or Yale. The score of the former year, which was 20 to 0 in favor of Pennsylvania, was reversed, Brown winning by a score of 6 to 0.

YALE—BROWN.

The day for this game was ideal and the field in perfect condition. Both teams showed at times good running play, but Yale was the stronger. Her team crowded the ball down into Brown's territory, scored a touchdown and was in sufficiently close proximity to Brown's goal to make use of the drop-kicking ability of Howe, so that the final score was 15 to 0.

PENN STATE VS. PENNSYLVANIA.

This was a most remarkable game in many ways. In 1910 Pennsylvania had defeated Penn State 10 to 9, but in the game of 1911 the Penn State team came with a most remarkable rush during the first period and their play was so bewildering that they seemed to score almost at will. After that the Pennsylvania team settled down and played very good foot ball. The lead, however, that Penn State had obtained was far too great for any possibilities of overcoming it and, although Pennsylvania scored, the final result was 22 to 6 in favor of Penn State.

GEORGETOWN—VIRGINIA.

The South Atlantic championship was decided on November 18, at Washington, when Georgetown, by superior playing, defeated Virginia 9 to 0, on a muddy field. Georgetown's previous tie with the Army marked the team favorites in the battle, and at no time after the first three minutes was there danger of a Georgetown defeat. The scores were both made in the first half, resulting from a touchdown by Fury, a goal from touchdown by Wymard and a field goal by Costello. Twelve thousand people attended.

MICHIGAN—PENNSYLVANIA.

This game, which the season before had resulted in a scoreless tie, was very close, both sides at times playing excellent foot ball, but the defense was sturdy and the westerners finally barely succeeded in winning by a score of 11 to 9.

ANNAPOLIS—WEST POINT.

This game was played at an unusual time of the season, being scheduled for the same date as the Yale-Harvard game. Neither side showed its best quality of foot ball, but the defense was good. Annapolis finally succeeded in winning by a field kick goal, score 3 to 0.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME.

MINNESOTA—CHICAGO.

The Minnesota team, which had defeated Chicago the year before 24 to 0, ran up even a larger score this year, although Chicago had proven in her earlier game a much better organization than in 1910. Minnesota's running game was too much for Chicago's defense and the Gophers finally triumphed by a score of 30 to 0.

MINNESOTA—WISCONSIN.

Minnesota, having romped away with Wisconsin in 1910, expected a decisive victory in 1911, but the game was played under very adverse conditions and Wisconsin put up a plucky contest, which finally ended in a tie score at 6 to 6.

CHICAGO—CORNELL.

Chicago played good foot ball against Cornell and, although not doing as well in the matter of score as the previous year, had a rather hard proposition, the game finally resulting in a victory for the western team by a score of 6 to 0. Chicago also defeated Illinois and took revenge for last season in this respect. This score was 24 to 0. Chicago repeated the same play with Wisconsin, turning the defeat of the previous year into a victory of 1911 by the score of 5 to 0.

CARLISLE—PENNSYLVANIA.

The Carlisle Indians took revenge for their defeat of the year before, putting up one of their characteristically confident games, and defeated Pennsylvania 16 to 0.

CORNELL—MICHIGAN.

Cornell played the best game of her season against Michigan. The score in 1910 was Michigan 12, Cornell 4, but last year Cornell triumphed with a score of 6 to 0.

HARVARD—DARTMOUTH.

The Harvard-Dartmouth game was an exciting and interesting one from start to finish. Dartmouth scored a field kick goal, but Harvard won the game by a score of 5 to 3.

Review of the Western Conference Season of 1911

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

For the first time since the adoption of the new rules, all the elevens in the Western Conference, or "Big Eight," in 1911, had a clear interpretation of the possibilities of the new regime, and as a result the contests were featured by open play in which the forward pass and punting were the principal factors in ground-gaining. The coaches cast into the discard plays which were essential to success under the old rules and only those formations which were absolutely sure to result in substantial gains were used.

The ruling which was passed at the 1910 meeting of the Conference representatives, making it imperative for each eleven to play at least four contests with other members of the organization, had its results in that the strongest team was easily determined, while the interest in the struggles was greater than at any time since the ten-yard rule was adopted. With seven-game schedules, the teams had opportunities of selecting three other opponents, which in the great majority of cases gave the Conference aggregations close and stubbornly fought contests.

All the games, with the possible exception of the Minnesota-Wisconsin struggle, were fought and won by the best teams, and the season as a whole was a success considered from every angle. The players had clear conceptions of the playing code and as a result there was little of the distasteful wrangling between players and officials. The spectators also had a fairly clear idea of the rules, which in a large number of instances made the contests doubly interesting.

There were no changes in the coaching systems of the teams from the previous year, and before the season opened each mentor knew the caliber of the material from which he had to select his respective eleven. The usual number of optimistic predictions were made before the opening of the season, and as the games took on greater importance, the elevens showed marked improvement which was a strong point in favor of the coaching systems. The teams were developed gradually and pointed to the harder and more important contests at the end of the season. In most of these championship struggles, the coaches were able to place their strongest teams in the field, with the result that no excuses were offered for defeats.

Rudimentary foot ball came in for more drill than it has at any time during the last six years, and it was due to the perfection of a number of cardinal foot ball points that some teams were so successful. Following the ball, falling on it with the desired results, tackling in the open, charging and getting down the field under punts, and thorough quizzes on the rules only were a few of the points in which the players were drilled every day.

All the teams started with enough old men to warrant a successful season, and with the number of new players who obtained their schooling on the freshman elevens the year before, the coaches were well fortified with material which had good conceptions of what was to be expected of them during the season. The absolute need of good coaches for the freshman teams was emphasized several times when the regular mentors did not have to spend much time in teaching players rudimentary foot ball. Their chief duties were to mould these players into the machine which was to give battle to opposing elevens. As there is a Conference rule which prohibits any of the squads from practicing as organized aggregations until September 20, the coaches lost no time in settling down to hard work and before the first week of practice had elapsed, some of them had put their respective squads through the first scrimmages. The men had been told to start training before the official opening of the practice season and the coaches put them through scrimmage work to ascertain how much training the different players needed to fit them for the early contests, some of which were played on the Saturday following the opening day of practice.

Although there were some players and coaches who expressed dissatisfaction over the rules, the majority was satisfied with the code and after the season it expressed the wish that the rules committee would not make too many changes. The players asserted the constant changing of the rules prevented them from obtaining a good insight into their possibilities, and they also claimed that if the rules are left alone long enough, the game gradually will be developed to the point which it reached in 1905.

A feature of the Conference season, which was a source of satisfaction to all interested, was the absence of serious injuries. In only one instance was a player disabled for the season and this was in the Wisconsin-Iowa contest when Pollock, the Badger half-back, had his leg broken. At Illinois, Seiler and Merriman, quarter-backs, had their collar bones broken, but both resumed play before the season ended. To those who have followed Conference closely, this is a remarkable feature as it generally has happened in the past that several serious injuries have resulted.

Unlike the season of 1910, when Minnesota and Illinois tied for the Conference title, the championship palm of 1911 rightfully belongs to Minnesota, a team which was proficient in every department of the game and one which completed its schedule without a defeat, its only black mark being the tie game with Wisconsin. With a wealth of material, Coach Williams developed a powerful aggregation which was more effective with the forward pass than any eleven he has coached since the adoption of the play. Unfortunately, the Gophers were deprived of the services of their captain and best player before the Wisconsin game and his absence from the line-up in this contest greatly weakened the eleven. Captain Pickering was protested by Wisconsin on grounds of professionalism and the Minnesota board of athletic control upheld the protest and refused to play its leader.

Wisconsin's action came in for a lot of criticism from Minnesota authorities and alumni because Pickering had been protested two days before the struggle. For a time it looked as if the Gopher authorities would cancel the game, for it was claimed Wisconsin displayed poor sportsmanship in lodging a protest at the eleventh hour. Minnesota, however, reconsidered its action and played the game, which resulted in a 6 to 6 tie, the ball being on Gopher one-yard line when the final whistle blew. In this contest quarter-back Capron of Minnesota performed a most spectacular feat by catching the oval on the initial kick-off and running through the entire Wisconsin team for the first score of the game. It was a great run and duplicated the performances which have been made in Conference foot ball in previous years.

Minnesota defeated Chicago, Iowa and Illinois, three Conference teams, while the tie game with Wisconsin was its fourth "Big Eight" struggle. Nebraska and Ames were other strong teams which fell before the prowess of the Maroon and Gold aggregation, and in all these contests the Gophers played hard, aggressive and consistent foot ball. In half-back Rosenwald, Center Morrell and Tackle Frank, Minnesota had three powerful players, men who were factors in all of the games. Rosenwald was a dashing player of the Heston type and he seldom failed to make ground when called upon to carry the ball on cross drives or end runs, while his superb defensive play and his ability to throw accurately forward passes made him the most valuable player on the team. Morrell, at center, played consistently in every contest. His sure and accurate passing, his ability to get out on the wings and do considerable tackling, and his quickness in sizing up plays made him a power of strength, offensively and defensively.

In Frank, Minnesota was fortunate in having a lineman who was the nearest approach of the season to Benbrook of Michigan, who is conceded to be the greatest lineman who ever played in the West. He was a hard, aggressive player who mixed in every play, and he was down the field under punts with the ends. His effective tackling and smashing of plays on his side of the line made his services invaluable. He was absolutely dependable, and he did not meet an opponent all season who could successfully check him.

As champion of the Conference colleges, Minnesota also should be ranked as about the strongest eleven in the West. Although it did not meet Michigan, Notre Dame or Marquette, three strong teams, the Gophers beat Nebraska, while the best the Wolverines could do with the Cornhuskers was to hold them to a 6 to 6 tie. As unfairness is shown in rating elevens on the comparative score basis, it would not be just to place one team ahead of another on such figuring, but it remained an open question as to whether there was a team in the west which could have beaten Minnesota.

Chicago was the surprise of the season, and to Coach A. A. Stagg belongs all the credit that can be bestowed upon him. With a mediocre squad, Stagg started the season with only fair prospects. Indiana was beaten in the first game and a victory over Purdue followed. Illinois was next on the list, and defeat for the Maroons was prophesied on all sides. By constant coaching and drilling, Stagg developed a team which decisively defeated the Orange and Blue eleven and raised the Maroon stock several notches.

On the next Saturday, Chicago was forced to leave home to play Minnesota at Minneapolis and the Maroon rooters thought a victory was assured. The Minnesota eleven had been developed to a great height of foot ball perfection and it probably played better in this contest than in any of the succeeding struggles. Chicago was helpless and succumbed to a 30 to 0 defeat. The Maroons were absolutely powerless, and the few first downs they made were the results of cleverly executed forward passes.

Northwestern was next on the list and Chicago was the victor after a bitterly fought contest. Cornell followed and after the Ithacans' victory over Michigan, nothing but defeat for Chicago was predicted. Rallying under the criticism which was heaped upon the members of the team from all sides, Chicago went into the Cornell battle determined to win and the team came off the field victors by a 6 to 0 score. Wisconsin was next on the schedule and the Badgers succumbed to a similar defeat.

The victory over Wisconsin entitled Chicago to second place in the Conference rating, and if the team had met Minnesota later in the season a closer game certainly should have resulted. The victories over Cornell and Wisconsin made the season a successful one, which at one time gave evidences of being the most disastrous in years. Horace Scruby, who played guard and end was the most important factor in all Chicago's games. His field goal kicking was one of the scoring assets of the Maroon eleven, while his general offensive and defensive play were beyond criticism.

Captain Rademacher, tackle, and Sauer, half-back, also were important cogs in the Midway machine and both played a stellar brand of foot ball at all times. The former was a versatile lineman, who was equally effective on the offense and defense, while the latter was one of the best backs of the year in Western foot ball. Sauer was about the equal of Rosenwald in all departments, and his ability to size up plays and then move to the points of attack was a feature pleasing to watch.

Wisconsin was awarded third position and its right to this place cannot be disputed, although Badger enthusiasts have asserted their team was entitled to equal ranking with Chicago for second place. Despite the rating of the elevens, Wisconsin had a more successful team than any of late years, and followers of Western foot ball were glad to see the Badgers assume the position they held before the reform wave struck Western athletics. The eleven was drilled in all the departments by the new coach, John Richards, who should make a success of the situation at Madison. In his first year he developed a team which nearly won the Conference title, and it came closer to beating Minnesota than any eleven the Gophers met. Captain Buser, quarter-back; Moll and Branstad, center, were three players who were a power of strength and they performed consistently in every contest.

Hard luck pursued the Illinois eleven all season. After starting the year with bright prospects, the chances of the team being a factor in the Conference race were impaired with the playing of every game. So many of the players suffered serious injuries that it was impossible to place a fit team in the field in the important struggles. In its last game with Minnesota, the Orange and Blue eleven rallied and by herculean efforts held the strong Gopher aggregation to a 11 to 0 score. In such a crippled condition, Illinois students considered such a performance in the light of a victory and the players were given great credit for their final effort.

Iowa enjoyed a much better season than it has for years; and the Hawkeyes are awarded fifth position. Under the able tutelage of Hawley, who developed a team which was more effective with the forward pass than any eleven since the play was adopted, Iowa gave all its opponents hard and close fought contests. Of the four Conference games played, Iowa won two and lost two, while its showing in the other struggles was worthy of favorable comment.

In Center O'Brien, Iowa had a kicker and all-around player who was the peer of any pivot man in the West. This player was heavy and fast, and he possessed foot ball intuition. He always exhorted his team-mates to greater efforts when an opposing eleven was gaining ground and in many other ways he was a most valuable player. Captain Murphy also is a great player, and he had the satisfaction of piloting one of the most successful Hawkeye teams of late years.

Purdue and Northwestern are placed on an equal basis for seventh position. Both institutions were represented by only average teams, which could not cope successfully with other members of the Conference. Lack of good material was the reason for their poor showing, although the elevens fought their opponents for every foot of ground until the final whistle blew. Northwestern won its only Conference game from Indiana, while the latter also gave Purdue its only victory over a "Big Eight" eleven. Each lost three games to Conference colleges, but they were victorious over other elevens which were rated as strong teams in this section.

Indiana had its worst season of recent years. The Hoosiers were unable to win a single Conference game, their tie with Illinois being the greatest accomplishment. Lack of material and unfortunate injuries impaired the team's chances and Coach Sheldon did well to accomplish what he did. Captain Gill, Whittaker and Davis were the mainstays of the eleven and if they had been given proper support, Indiana certainly would have had a more successful season.

At the close of the campaign dissatisfaction was expressed over the inability of the Conference colleges to engage in more than seven games. As the players only are allowed to play three years, those in favor of the gridiron game asserted larger schedules should be permitted, and there were a number who wanted Thanksgiving Day games. Despite these protests, the Conference season was a success, and as few of the elevens will be depleted to any great extent by loss of veterans, all the "Big Eight" colleges should be represented by strong elevens in 1912.

It would be unjust to close this article without reviewing the work of some of the elevens in this section who are not members of the Conference. Although a former member of the organization and an institution which every true lover of athletics would like to see back in the fold, Michigan had one of the most peculiar seasons in years. Like Illinois, the Wolverines were hampered by injuries, and before certain contests Coach Yost did not know just what players to use in the important struggles.

After withdrawing from the Conference, Michigan opened foot ball relations with Pennsylvania and since 1905 Penn has been its natural rival. Before the largest crowd that ever saw a game on Ferry field, Ann Arbor, Yost's team succeeded in downing the Quakers, 11 to 9, in a game replete with chance plays. Shortly before the game started, snow began to fall which was whipped into a blizzard by a strong west wind. Under such conditions, good foot ball could not have been expected, but the teams struggled through sixty minutes of play unmindful of the conditions. In the closing minutes of play, half-back Craig got away for a forty-yard run as a result of a trick play, which spelled victory for Michigan and defeat for Pennsylvania.

Michigan had a hard schedule. It played such teams as Ohio State, Case, Syracuse, Vanderbilt, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Nebraska. Yost's team was held to two tie scores, Syracuse and Nebraska being the elevens to throw scares into the hearts of Wolverine supporters. Considering the number of injured players who were not at their best at any time during the season, Michigan certainly made a creditable showing. Thomson, full-back; Wells, end; Captain Conklin, tackle and end, and Pontius, end, were men who were responsible for such a successful season, although some of them were kept out of the more important games because of injuries.

The Michigan Agricultural College, which was coached by Macklin, a former Pennsylvania player, had one of the most successful seasons of the so-called smaller Western elevens. The team knew a lot of foot ball and it knew how to play it. Wabash college was another institution which had a strong eleven and which won several good games.

Notre Dame and Marquette, the two leading Catholic colleges in the Central West, were represented by their usual strong teams. In their annual clash at Milwaukee, neither was able to settle supremacy and a scoreless tie resulted. Both were represented by powerful elevens which would have been worthy foes for any teams in the country. As neither team played with any of the Conference elevens, it is hard to form an idea of the comparative merits of foot ball played by either Notre Dame or Marquette, as compared with the "Big Eight" teams.

Generally speaking the 1911 season in the Central West was a success. The contests were seen by large and enthusiastic crowds, the battles were fought and won on their merits, versatile players were developed, and plays made possible by use of the new rules were executed for desired results. If no changes are made in the coaching departments at the different colleges, it is only reasonable to believe that the brand of foot ball played in 1912 will be even better than that of a year ago.

Foot Ball in the Middle States

By GEORGE W. ORTON, UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

With Princeton generally considered as the champion college foot ball team of the year, with such remarkably strong elevens as State, Carlisle, the Navy, Lafayette, Pennsylvania, in its concluding games, and other teams playing foot ball of a very high rank, the Middle States need take rank second to no other section of the country. This was also proven conclusively in the various games played by Middle States teams with elevens from the South, the West, or the East. Though because of Princeton's lack of offensive strength some critics were very loath to give her credit for full championship honors, the fact remains that the Sons of Old Nassau did win their important games and made the most of the rules as they were. Princeton and Pennsylvania's seasons will be spoken of at length in Mr. Camp's article on the big colleges, so we shall merely refer to them here as both are Middle States institutions, and no article on Middle States foot ball would be complete without reference to them.

Pennsylvania had as poor a season as Princeton had a good one. Were it not for the fact that in the Michigan game and the Cornell contest Pennsylvania played ball that offensively and defensively was as strong and varied as any team of the year, the season of the Red and Blue would go down as an absolute failure. The Michigan game was really a victory, as many Western critics freely admitted. Mistakes made by the officials robbed Pennsylvania of points that were fairly earned. Against Cornell, Pennsylvania played the game up to the highest standards of the season, not only offensively but defensively. If Princeton had her "Sam" White, Pennsylvania had in Captain Mercer one of the greatest running backs that the American game has ever developed.

Three teams stand out very prominently from the others in the Middle States, namely, Carlisle, State, and the Navy. All three played ball that was inferior to that shown by Princeton only in the finer points of defensive work. In the case of the Navy, it is a question whether even this should be granted to Princeton. With Carlisle and State, whatever inferiority they may have shown in defensive work, they more than made up by the much greater brilliancy, variety, and power of their offense. It is enough to state that in comparison with Princeton, the acknowledged champions of the year, these teams made a brilliant showing and must be ranked very high.

State College and Annapolis played a 0 to 0 game, which shows how closely they were matched. Carlisle did not meet either of these colleges, but by defeating Harvard, Pennsylvania, Lafayette, and other strong teams they showed that they were about as fine a team as the Indians have ever produced. These three teams should be ranked together, though it must be stated that in all-round development both Carlisle and State were superior to the Navy. Carlisle had, in Thorpe, one of the greatest backs that has ever been seen in the history of the game. He excelled in all points. Defensively, he was a tower of strength. Offensively, he was a great factor whether running with the ball himself or interfering for a mate. As a drop-kicker and kicker of goals from placement, he stood without a peer during the past season. His record of four goals from the field against such a high class team as Harvard had will be remembered for many years to come. The Navy also had a fine kicker in Dalton, whose ready toe, for the second successive year, proved the undoing of the Army. State also developed a team of exceptional brilliancy. Miller in the Pennsylvania game scored from the kick-off, taking the ball through the entire field of his opponents, and three minutes later got away again for a long run and a touchdown. Captain Very again proved himself one of the very best ends of the season.

Though the above three colleges are mentioned especially, there were several others that played the game up to a high standard. Pittsburgh was one of these. Its close game with Cornell and the way in which the State Collegians were stood off and prevented them from scoring except by a goal from the field, prove that the Pittsburgh team was the best in the history of the institution. It is plainly entitled to the championship of Western Pennsylvania. A team that should be ranked with Pittsburgh is Lafayette. Its victory over Syracuse showed that when at its best the players were a very strong eleven. Pennsylvania and the Indians defeated Lafayette, but Lehigh, Swarthmore, Gettysburg, Dickinson and Bucknell all succumbed to the prowess of the Eastonians. Captain Benson was chosen by many well-known critics as All-America center.

Swarthmore did not reach its full development until the season was nearly over, but in the Dickinson game the men played ball that would have done credit to one of the Big Four, winning by 18 to 0, three times the score made by Lafayette. On the season's showing as a whole, Swarthmore should rank here. Gieg was one of the best handlers and throwers of the forward pass playing the game.

Bucknell, Lehigh, Dickinson, Ursinus, Allegheny, Franklin and Marshall, Haverford and New York University had teams up to their usual standard. Ursinus fell back from the previous year, but turned out a team that was most creditable to the size of the institution. Captain Thompson proved himself one of the greatest players of the year, being chosen by many critics as All-America tackle. Topham of Bucknell was also noted for his punting and general work in the back-field.

The situation in Maryland was rather complicated, but though both Washington College and Western Maryland claim the championship of the State (barring the Navy, of course), the general work of the team and the standard of ball played in the big games would indicate that the honors should rest with Western Maryland. That team was considered as the better one by the great majority of the critics. Johns Hopkins University had a good team, but was defeated by Western Maryland.

One feature of the season's play is found in the fact that very many of the choices of the best All-America teams were picked from teams in this district. Benson of Lafayette, Very and Miller of State, Thorpe of Carlisle, Thompson of Ursinus, were but a few of the men that were considered as the best playing their positions, indicating that there must have been a very high standard of play through the colleges of these States. The fact that the Navy tied Princeton, defeated West Point, and tied State, that State won from Pennsylvania, that the Indians defeated both Pennsylvania and Harvard, are but a few of the proofs that substantiate this statement.

In my travels among American colleges I found this year in Dixie-land something rare in university life. Our Southland is unique in having the largest group of colleges in these United States playing all sports under one set of laws administered by one body—the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association. This association comprises the States of Kentucky, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina, Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi. (Texas and other States were formerly members, but have since withdrawn to form separate associations of smaller size.) This large Southern association has existed since December, 1894, and lived in comparative harmony since then—something else rare among American colleges. It has done a wholesome work in developing a healthful athletic spirit and in elevating the ideals of sport.

To appreciate the wonderful work being done by athletes in the South one must understand the distances traveled in order to meet any opponent—this year Auburn, Sewanee, and Mississippi journeyed to Arkansas, Texas, Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia, over three thousand miles, to play three games—trips caused by a scarcity of near opponents. Members of the S. I. A. A. are nearly all State universities, colleges of Statehood strength with eligibility rules of the highest, and leading for this higher amateur and scholastic spirit in the South has been Vanderbilt, with much of the credit due its athletic chairman, Professor W. L. Dudley.

The season of 1911 in Dixieland was notable for many things: (1) The first and most important being the absence of any fatal or distressing injuries; (2) Vanderbilt's decisive winning of the Southern championship; (3) the inability of any team (except a markedly superior eleven) to score except on a fumble or forward pass; (4) the number of important games decided on drop-kicks, fumbles, or forward passes (legal or intercepted); (5) the success of the forward pass in the hands of Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech., A. and M., and Tulane, and its failure or non use at critical times by Auburn or Mississippi in their important games; (6) the high-class kicking of all varieties; (7) games more interesting to the uninitiated spectator.

For the first time in many years Vanderbilt is the undisputed champion of the South. Usually Texas and Arkansas have entered strong claims for the coveted honor, but little Sewanee this year disposed of Texas and in turn Texas disposed of Arkansas.

In addition, Sewanee defeated Alabama and Tulane and made creditable showings against every one, but succumbed to Vanderbilt—31 to 0. Thus does Vanderbilt owe Sewanee a debt of thanks for giving the Commodores such an undisputed claim.

The fight for second place narrows to Auburn, as, undefeated by any S. I. A. A. team, she won from A. and M. by one touchdown (A. and M. having defeated L. S. U.), defeated Tech. on an intercepted forward pass, and with a badly crippled team held Georgia to a tie—the latter defeating Tech., Sewanee, and Alabama by decisive scores. Several writers, especially Vanderbilt men, give University of Mississippi second place on her great showing at Vanderbilt because she defeated Mercer with Mercer's strongest team by a larger score than Auburn, and trounced Mercer 30 points greater than Georgia, but Auburn had a more consistent record in the face of great misfortunes. A. and M. of Mississippi is given third place because of a uniformly good record.

For captain and quarter-back of this All-Southern team I would unhesitatingly choose Morrison of Vanderbilt. I have seen all the great American quarter-backs since 1900, and he loses nothing by comparison—the man he most resembles is Daly, the Harvard captain and ex-West Pointer. He is a great general, a fast thinker, a wonderful dodging runner and a great kicker, and only has one weakness; he cannot drop-kick. Another real leader is Williams of A. and M., the brains of the Mississippi Farmers. His playing standard fell after he was injured, but he has brains, fire and dash; Woodruff of Georgia and Randolph of Mississippi are good, while Newell of Auburn is a fair quarter; but none possesses the self-confidence or the great art of Morrison of pulling a game out of a hole.

Two men stand head and shoulders above all candidates for the center position—Morgan, 6 feet 3 inches, 236 pounds, has passed the ball two years beautifully for Vanderbilt; he keeps the opposing defensive half-back out of many plays, and is a good defensive man. Adams of Mississippi would have won the place had he not been injured before he met Morgan. Adams is 6 feet 1 inch and 180 pounds.

Guards were above the average. Bonner of Auburn was one of the best I have seen.

Another consistent performer is Mills of A. and M. (Mississippi), a 200-pounder of willing frame and growing experience; his defense in many games saved yards for the Farmers. Metzgar and Brown (Vanderbilt) are stars and would be my choice had they stopped the Mississippi players from gaining over them; Causey (Mississippi), Stoney (Sewanee), Allen (Mississippi A. and M.), and Peacock (Georgia) have played fine games all year.

Tackle is easy to pick. Freeland (Vanderbilt) would make any American team; his 196 pounds of aggressiveness are in every play; his work on defense is a treat to see, while his tackling under punts is superb. Barker (Mississippi) for his first year was not far behind Freeland, and will make a valuable man next year, as his 190 pounds are combined with speed. Brown (Vanderbilt), Cogdell (Auburn), Maddox (Georgia), Covington (Vanderbilt), Ramsey (Kentucky), and Countess (Alabama) are men any team would be glad to possess.

The ends find Walton (Mississippi) and Gillem (Sewanee) excellent defenders. The former, with a long reach from his 6 feet of height and 180 pounds of bone and muscle, made Vanderbilt avoid his end, and his speed in catching Morrison in an open field shows his ability and spirit. Gillem is speedy and a good tackler, while his punting averages close to 45 and 50 yards. These qualities, combined with an ability to make good at drop-kicking in close finishes, stamps him as invaluable to any team. Goree of Tech., is another fine all-round end, and Vandegraef (Alabama) is an inspiration to his team. N. Brown (Vanderbilt) is a good man under kicks, and can stand a lot of punishment. McGehee (A. and M.) and Garrett (Tulane) played fine ball, being especially valuable in open field work.

First-class back-field men were plentiful, the best two being Hardage (Vanderbilt) and McWhorter (Georgia). Hardage is a beautiful dodger, acquiring speed easily; McWhorter is almost as good, and a better line plunger, due to his twenty pounds in weight over Hardage. Shields (Mississippi) is another fast man of the Hardage style, and a greater defensive player. His tackling is clean and deadly, while his punting is finely placed, and averages over 45 yards. Mitchell (Mississippi) is a hard runner, as is Myers (Sewanee) and Jennings (A. and M.); Sikes (Vanderbilt) will be a wonder before he finishes his career, and his side partner, Collins, is bound to share in it. Davis (Auburn) is a strong runner, but has a fatal tendency to slow starting: this would delay any back-field, so I would move him to the line, where his fine defensive work would be of greatest value. Cahall (Mississippi) is a strong runner and fine kicker. On this team I would have a line that would be over 6 feet in height, average 190 pounds, and be fast under kicks and a most powerful defense. In Morrison we have one of the best generals that ever wore a shoe—he could forward pass, or end run, or get off quick on side kicks. In our backs—McWhorter, Shields and Hardage—we have three fine defensive men who can easily foretell forward passes, and each man is quick at picking openings or running in a broken field. McWhorter I would use at full-back because of his 180 pounds of good line-plunging, combined with fine open field and end running. Shields could be depended upon to do all sorts of punting, and Gillem could be allowed to spend all his time drop-kicking. McWhorter and Morrison would run back punts in a style to delight everyone. This team is one that would make any All-America team realize that the Southland had stars equal to the best.

All-Ohio Conference Eleven for 1911

By C. W. SAVAGE, OBERLIN COLLEGE.

Eight months after the close of a foot ball season it would be rank presumption for any writer to try to pick an All-Ohio Eleven from the wealth of material representing the eleven Ohio Conference colleges during the season of 1911. Instead of such a course, I am glad to insert the selections of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and those of the Ohio State Journal of Columbus, which represent the opinion of two of the foremost sporting editors of the State, one in Northern Ohio, and one in Central Ohio.

PLAIN DEALER.	POSITION.	OHIO STATE JOURNAL.
Axtell, Kenyon.....	Left End.....	Gray, Oberlin
Hutchison, Wesleyan.....	Left Tackle.....	Barricklow, O.S.U.
Raymond, O.S.U.....	Left Guard.....	Portman, Reserve
MacDaniels, Oberlin.....	Center.....	MacDaniels, Oberlin
Weiler, Case.....	Right Guard.....	Raymond, O.S.U.
Barricklow, O.S.U.....	Right Tackle.....	Hutchison, Wesleyan
Gray, Oberlin.....	Right End.....	Littick, Wesleyan
Roby, Case.....	Quarter-back.....	Roby, Case
Shepherd, Wesleyan.....	Left Half-back.....	Stimson, Oberlin
Stimson, Oberlin.....	Right Half-back.....	Rupp, Denison
Snider, Reserve.....	Full-back.....	Thomssen, Wesleyan

Probably more satisfactory to players and coaches and all others interested in foot ball than either of the two teams selected above is the summary of votes collected from eight foot ball critics in the State by the Cleveland Plain Dealer. According to the votes cast the complete summary is as follows:

For ends—Axtell, Kenyon, 4; Hanley, Reserve, and Littick, Wesleyan, 3; Gray, Oberlin and Kioka, Case, 2; Snider, Reserve, and Pyle, Oberlin, 1.

For tackles—Barricklow, State, 7; Hutchison, Wesleyan, 5; Markley, State, 2; Snider, Reserve, 1; Thomssen, Wesleyan, 1.

For guards—Raymond, State, 6; Weiler, Case, 3; Parsons, Case, 3; Hubbard, Oberlin, 1; Portman, Reserve, 1.

For center—MacDaniels, Oberlin, 8.

For quarter-back—Roby, Case, 8.

For half-backs—Stimson, Oberlin, 7; Shepherd, Wesleyan, 5; Rupp, Denison, 3; Baker, Miami, 1.

For full-backs—Thomssen, Wesleyan, 6; Snider, Reserve, 2.

This statement shows Roby of Case and MacDaniels of Oberlin as the leading two foot ball players of Ohio. I think no one would question the standing of these men. The loss by graduation of players of such remarkable ability as that possessed by them will be severe for Ohio foot ball. Barricklow of State and Stimson of Oberlin each have seven votes. Guard Raymond of State and full-back Thomssen of Wesleyan and Shepherd of the same team have five apiece. In addition to the players thus selected as favorites by the eight experts, it seems to me that there should be mentioned at least two other players of fine ability, who in some way were overlooked by those experts. These are left end Pyle of Oberlin who played a steady and consistent end and who was scarcely less brilliant than Gray, and Rupp of Denison. This latter player certainly deserves a place on the honor roll. He was a glutton for work and rarely failed to deliver when called upon in pinches.

There is no doubt that a team selected from players mentioned above would make a remarkable showing against any all-star team similarly selected from any other section of the country. Ohio coaches grasped much of the possibilities of the new game and were not afraid to take long chances at critical points. Ohio foot ball to my mind compares favorably with foot ball played in any other section of the United States, either east or west.

Foot Ball in Ohio

By C. W. SAVAGE, OBERLIN COLLEGE.

Foot ball as a game beneficial to players and fascinating for spectators made good in Ohio in 1911. All eleven teams of the Ohio Conference colleges were well coached, and most of the men handling non-conference teams also showed a thorough appreciation of the great possibilities of modern foot ball. If there were any real failures among the Ohio coaches it was not apparent, and the work of several of these men deserves special mention. Hinaman of Ohio University and Dawson at Mt. Union turned out remarkable teams when the size of their institutions and previous records of the schools are considered. Xen Scott of Case and Glen Gray of Oberlin produced the two great surprises among the Big Six teams, each bringing a bunch of green players, hardly worthy of mention at the beginning of the season, up to the highest point of efficiency at its close. The records for the Ohio Conference colleges for the season were as follows:

	W.	L.	Tie	PC.		W.	L.	Tie	PC.
Oberlin	4	0	1	1.000	Reserve	2	3	2	.400
Case	5	1	1	.833	Ohio Univ.	1	2	1	.333
Ohio State	4	1	2	.800	Wittenberg ...	1	4	0	.200
Wesleyan	6	2	0	.750	Miami	1	4	0	.200
Cincinnati	2	1	1	.667	Wooster	0	3	0
Denison	3	2	2	.428	Kenyon	0	6	0

The above table shows Oberlin again holding first place. This is a remarkable achievement for both the team and Coach Gray. At the beginning of college, Captain MacDaniels at center, one guard, a halfback, and two substitute linemen, made up the nucleus around which Coach Gray and Assistant Coach Nichols had to build up a team. The return to college in October of two more veterans strengthened Oberlin's prospects a little, but the critics throughout the state gave to the Oberlin squad little more than passing consideration as a possibility for finishing in the first division. In addition to the lack of veterans Oberlin was short on new material, and worst of all she was embarking upon a new system of coaching with two of her own graduates of the previous year, G. C. Gray and J. H. Nichols, in charge, appointed as year-round coaches with faculty ranking. That Oberlin met this situation, played through a heavy schedule, and reached the end of her season, defeated only by Cornell, is certainly an extraordinary achievement. Much credit for the success of the season must be given to Captain L. H. MacDaniels, the unanimous choice of all foot ball writers of the state for All-Ohio center. Always full of spirit and aggressiveness, and a player of wonderful endurance, MacDaniels made an ideal captain. He played through his entire three years in 'varsity foot ball without an injury or ever taking time out. This is a tremendous record for a man weighing only 158 pounds.

The fine record of Case School as runner-up was hardly less remarkable than Oberlin's. Coach Scott attained wonderful results with his material for a first year coach, and brought his team from being considered unworthy of notice up to a real contender before mid-season. It ought also to be noted that the Case players trained under most adverse conditions, since a large part of their practice work was done by electric light because of long hours in shop work and laboratory. The strength of the Case team was in all-round team play rather than in individual stars, with the one remarkable exception of Captain Roby at quarter. This player was the only other unanimous choice for the All-Ohio team. Captain Roby was almost, if not quite, 50 per cent. of the Case team's offensive strength. He was not only a great field general, but an extraordinary performer, being a punter and drop-kicker of high class and the best open-field runner in the state. In defensive work also he was a sure and deadly tackler and his remarkable speed made him a most valuable foot ball player, both on offense and defense. Without Roby the Case team would have been only ordinary, with him it was one of the best teams that that institution has put out in many years.

The record made by the Ohio State University, the third team in the ranking was a distinct disappointment. With twice or three times as much available material as any other institution in the state, the Capitol City team should naturally have found no difficulty in eliminating her opponents in the Ohio Conference. It was probably this wealth of material more than anything else that made the development of a real team such a difficult task for Coach Vaughan. Toward the end of the season Ohio State was coming strong and were Coach Vaughan to take hold next season where he left off last, he would undoubtedly develop a team capable of making a much better record. Probably the best game of the season was that with Syracuse at Columbus on November 25, when State was finally defeated on a duke play which resulted in a run of 70 yards for a touchdown, Syracuse winning by a score of 6 to 0, after having been played practically to a standstill.

The fourth team in standing was the one that undoubtedly proved the biggest disappointment of the season. With practically his entire team composed of veterans, Coach St. John was expected to turn out a pennant winner. The Wesleyan record was so good in the season of 1910 that it seemed sure that the record of 1911 would be better. The team started the season apparently where it had stopped the previous year. It had little difficulty in eliminating all opponents up to October 28 when it was defeated, although not outplayed by Ohio State, at Columbus, by a score of 3 to 0. Wesleyan easily defeated Miami on November 4, but met her Waterloo at Cleveland when Case won on November 11 by the score of 16 to 6. It would seem however, that the tremendous strength of this team offensively, especially in mid-field work, was the real undoing of Wesleyan's pennant aspirations. So easy was ground gained by this powerful machine that it felt that it could score at ease, but when the 10 and 15-yard lines of their opponents had been reached, the going was so much harder that invariably the onward march of Wesleyan was stopped and the ball lost to opponents. Injuries, too, severely affected the chances of this team. In spite of the fact that Wesleyan stands fourth in the percentage column it is to be noted that she played eight Conference games and lost only two.

The season of 1911 was the first season of Cincinnati University as a Conference college. The team played only four Conference games, winning two, losing one, and tying one. The team was a good one and played first class foot ball. This year Cincinnati will certainly have to be considered a championship possibility.

Denison University put out a strong team last year and, with the record of three games won, two tied, and two lost, made the best showing since the university has been in the Conference.

The record of the Western Reserve University team was a disappointment, even greater than that of Ohio Wesleyan. Reserve had an abundance of fine material, an experienced coach with a fine record of championship teams back of him, and a schedule wisely planned. Nevertheless, injuries and reverses so disrupted the team that it never reached a high standard of efficiency. Its best performance was the scoreless tie played with the Navy at Annapolis on October 28.

Ohio University was another team playing its first year under Conference rules. It means a big jump toward winning teams from one that never scored a point in 1910 to a team that won better than half of its games in 1911, though it must be remembered that at least half of the games won were with elevens outside of the Ohio Conference. With Coach Hinaman again engaged for 1912 Ohio University will need to be watched.

Wittenberg, Miami and Wooster had fair teams, Kenyon is so weak numerically that her teams are not regularly expected to be as strong as those representing other Conference colleges. The remarkable fighting qualities and the unquenchable spirit of this little institution are such, however, that it is always sought as an opponent.

Of the teams outside of the Ohio Conference, Hiram, Buchtel, Ohio Northern, Mt. Union, Otterbein and Marietta are the ones most deserving mention. The record of Mt. Union under Coach Dawson was remarkable, the team's exhibition being invariably that of a well oiled machine. Coach Dawson certainly brought great credit upon himself as a foot ball mentor. It is undoubtedly true that the type of foot ball displayed by Mt. Union was on a par with that played by any of the Ohio Conference teams. Buchtel had to develop new material to fill the vacancies of the preceding year. By mid-season Coach Haggerty had developed a team of great strength. This is particularly true of the defensive work. The record made by the team was very creditable to both coach and the institution.

In closing this review the writer wishes to make an apology for its incompleteness. It is a difficult thing to attempt a review of a foot ball season eight months after it has occurred, especially if one has not been asked in time to gather notes and statistics while the season was in progress. For the sake of Ohio foot ball it is to be hoped that an earlier and more satisfactory arrangement can be made for the season of 1912, which at this distance promises to be a banner year in Ohio foot ball.

Foot Ball in Western Pennsylvania

BY EDWARD M. THIERRY, PITTSBURGH.

There was no question about the intercollegiate foot ball championship in Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia during the season of 1911. The Penn State College team scored a distinctive and unequivocal triumph, clinching it by defeating the University of Pittsburgh team, its most formidable rival, 3 to 0, on Thanksgiving Day.

In view of Penn State's remarkable campaign there is slight wonder that it was declared champion. And in this connection the Pittsburgh team has no small measure of satisfaction in the knowledge that it was only beaten by the narrow margin of a goal from placement. With State first and Pittsburgh second in the final summary, third place is given on the strength of competitive scores to Washington and Jefferson College, fourth place to West Virginia University and fifth to Carnegie Tech Schools.

State made a record unprecedented, having victories to its credit over Cornell and the University of Pennsylvania and a no-score tie with the Navy. This was no mean feat, when it is considered that the Navy was one of the strongest teams in the East, having put up such a strong battle, in which defeat was not theirs against the Princeton champions. State beat Cornell 5 to 0, while Pennsylvania, which had a surprisingly weak team in 1911, was beaten 22 to 6. Villanova was defeated 18 to 0 and Colgate 17 to 9, while Geneva and Gettysburg were literally swamped, 57 to 0 and 31 to 0, respectively.

The game between Pittsburgh and State for years has been a Thanksgiving Day fixture, with rivalry strong and strength usually equally divided. Last year Pittsburgh was the victor and the consequent sectional champion. Last fall Pittsburgh did very well, only being beaten by Cornell and Carlisle and holding the strong Notre Dame University team to a scoreless tie. But, considering State's phenomenal sweep, the experts had expected a more severe defeat on Thanksgiving Day. State won and became the permanent possessor of the magnificent Spalding trophy, but there was no little satisfaction in Pittsburgh owing to the fact that the University played the swift State machine to an excellent draw, the only thing that gave the State team the victory being a goal booted from placement by their whirlwind full-back, Mauthe. It has been announced that the Spaldings will offer another trophy, to be won by virtue of three legs on it, as was the other.

Aside from the loss of the handsome trophy, which had been placed in competition several years before, through the generosity of A. G. Spalding & Brothers, the Pittsburgh players were widely commended because their goal was uncrossed, so far as a touchdown was concerned. They put up a brilliant game, but the early injury of Quarter-back Tillie Dewar deprived them of the services of a field general and they were lacking in headwork. It was the general opinion that had Dewar been able to remain in the game, Pittsburgh would have scored at least one touchdown. Huhe Wagner, the University team's sterling end, carved his name deeply in the tablet of fame. He punted in poor luck, but his tackling and running were pronounced the equal of that of White, Princeton's All-America end, or any other player on the college gridiron.

Pittsburgh beat Washington and Jefferson, its other ancient rival, twelve days before Thanksgiving, by the decisive score of 12 to 0, and the week previously triumphed over Villanova by a similar total. Neither side scored in the Notre Dame game, while Cornell won from Pittsburgh by the score of 9 to 3. In the third game of the season, after 24-0 and 22-0 victories over Westminster and Ohio Northern, the Pittsburghers lost to the Carlisle Indians, 17 to 0.

Although Washington and Jefferson was beaten by West Virginia, 6 to 5, the former team ranked third in view of other showings. The Navy overwhelmed West Virginia 32 to 0, but was only able to beat Washington and Jefferson, 16 to 0. As another example, West Virginia barely nosed out the Westminsters 3 to 0, while Washington and Jefferson swamped them, 33 to 0, nine points more than even Pittsburgh scored. Again, Allegheny, a team ranking with Westminster and Geneva, both of whom Washington and Jefferson beat easily, won from West Virginia, 10 to 6. Thus, the fair conclusion is that West Virginia was extremely lucky to defeat Washington and Jefferson by the slim margin of one point, 6 to 5. The only other teams the Mountaineers won over were Ohio University, 3 to 0; Wesleyan, 36 to 0, and Marshall, 17 to 16, none of which teams figured very high in college foot ball. Besides holding the Navy to a 16-0 score, Washington and Jefferson kept Cornell down to a 6-0 count and beat Villanova, 11 to 6.

It will be noted that the three chief rivals—State, Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson—played just two teams in common, aside from their inter-team games. These were Cornell and Villanova. State defeated Cornell, 5 to 0; Pittsburgh lost, 9 to 3, and Washington and Jefferson lost, 6 to 0; State defeated Villanova, 18 to 0; Pittsburgh won, 12 to 0, and Washington and Jefferson won, 11 to 6. Both comparisons place the three teams in this order: State, Pittsburgh, Washington and Jefferson.

As for the Carnegie Tech, the fifth member of what has been termed the "Big Five," they showed little strength, although they had such a famous man as "Tex" Ramsdell, the ex-Pennsylvania star, as coach. Tech, during its few years of existence, has been hampered in foot ball—as are most all technical schools—by the unusually hard curriculum, making it difficult for students to get out for practice. There were lots of material, plenty of enthusiasm and athletic inclination, but studies stood in the way. This is not often the case where college foot ball is concerned, but Carnegie Tech. school is different. There were 2,500 students to pick from, but their hands were literally tied.

Right here, I desire to make the prediction that in ten or fifteen years Carnegie Tech. will rank athletically with the biggest colleges in the country. More millions are being spent on buildings than in any other institution of learning in the world, and in that space of time there will probably be twice as many students. At no great future date Carnegie Tech. will be a foot ball power to be reckoned with nationally.

As for coaches, the Pittsburgh team again had Joe Thompson, ex-Pittsburgh star, who turned out a championship eleven in 1910. Washington and Jefferson once more had Dave Morrow, former star center, while State was coached by "Bull" McCleary, a few years ago that College's star full-back. They turned out some clever players during the year, as evidenced by the unusual uniformity of the all-star selections.

Six men stood out in a class by themselves, being the unanimous choice for their respective positions of four Pittsburgh writers. These men are Galvin of Pittsburgh, center; Miller of State, quarter-back; Wagner of Pittsburgh, and Very of State, ends; Mauthe of State, full-back, and Brown of Pittsburgh, half-back. Tibbens was the only Washington and Jefferson man picked on any team, three of the writers selecting him for tackle and one for half-back, he having played both positions. Dewar of Pittsburgh was the choice of three for half-back. He really played quarter, but Miller's super-excellence kept him out of that berth, yet no other half-back, besides Brown, was strong enough to keep him from representation.

Bebout of State, a former Pittsburgh High School star, was picked by three for guard, while Blair of Pittsburgh was chosen by two for guard and by one for tackle. Harlowe of State was the choice of two for tackle, while Engle of State was chosen by one for guard and by another for tackle. Feightner, Leahy and Stevenson, all of Pittsburgh, each got on one team, the first named as a tackle and the other two as guards.

In all, the four writers picked but fifteen different men, six of whom were unanimous. Very, an end, was Walter Camp's choice on his second All-America team, but throughout Western Pennsylvania it is stoutly contended that Wagner of Pittsburgh rather outclassed him.

As for the scholastic teams of Western Pennsylvania, Shadyside Academy and Greensburg High School were practically tied for the championship. Johnstown High was also a contender and shared in the honors. Shadyside claimed supremacy because of defeating Pittsburgh High School, one-time champions, 5 to 0, while Greensburg only beat Pittsburgh, 8 to 6. With first place a tie. Pittsburgh High was generally conceded second place, East Liberty Academy third, Washington and Jefferson Academy fourth and Wilkensburg High School fifth.

The foot ball season of 1911 among the members of the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic Association was marked by two things, the remarkable development in the defensive part of the game, and the unusual number of goals from the field. Never has Illinois seen so many star end men, and never before has she realized the need of good kickers.

Knox won the championship with a well balanced, well coached fighting machine, that succeeded in going through a hard season without a single slump. James Millikin University, by overwhelming Monmouth, who later lost to Lake Forest only by a fluke, won second place. Millikin had just been knocked to pieces by the State University and was absolutely without a punter when she met the strong Knox team and was put out of the running before the season was well under way.

Lake Forest, with a hard tackling, resourceful and plucky team, fought hard, and in actual playing strength ranks side by side with Millikin. Monmouth, ranking fourth, was playing as strong a game as either of the last two named colleges at the close of the season. She was in a severely crippled condition when meeting Millikin at the zenith of the latter's powers, and her only other defeat in the state was at the hands of Lake Forest in a heart-breaking game that looked throughout like a victory. Monmouth's 6 to 3 defeat of William and Vashti forced the latter down into fifth place. While most critics rank Lombard lower than William and Vashti in actual playing strength, in my opinion she deserves to tie the Aledo eleven for fifth place by virtue of playing the latter to a tie in a blizzard one bleak November day.

Lombard and Wesleyan did not meet, but judging by comparative scores (the only method Illinois has ever used in ranking teams), Lombard clearly showed her superiority by overwhelming Bradley and Lincoln, teams which respectively held Wesleyan to a low score and defeated her. Seventh place was fought for by a number of teams. The tangle is unraveled as follows: Illinois Wesleyan, in spite of the final defeat by Lincoln deserves first honors because of her victories over Shurtleff, Eastern Normal and her consistent showing against such strong teams as Millikin and Lake Forest. Eastern Normal probably comes next. Shurtleff and Lincoln, who tied each other, 3 to 3, also finished equal in ranking, for although Lincoln defeated Wesleyan, who in turn defeated Shurtleff, yet in the case of Illinois College the situation was exactly reversed. Illinois thus wins eleventh place, Macomb Normal, Hedding and Bradley bring up the rear.

In regard to the All-State selections I shall only have space to discuss the best fifteen players. Of these, five men stand out as absolutely without a peer. They are Barclay, at center; West, at quarter; Smith, at half; Yoder, at guard, and McMurray, at full. Barclay proved himself the most aggressive lineman of the year at center. At guard, Yoder's 210 pounds of muscle made him a veritable stonewall on defense and in spite of his weight he led the interference on offense, besides carrying the ball from guard position for many long gains. At the other guard I place Carlstrom of Knox, a man largely of Yoder's type, and, though inexperienced, a power either on defense or offense. At tackle Hartman, captain-elect of Knox for 1912, deserves first consideration, closely followed by Captain Ghormley of Monmouth. The latter was one of the pluckiest and headiest linemen of the year, always working hard and to the dread of his opponents. The end position is the hardest problem of all. There are ten end men in Illinois who can play each other to a standstill. However, when it is considered that A. Dunsmore of Lake Forest was practically one-half of that team's defensive strength it will be conceded that he deserves a place. Evans of Millikin, for all-round playing, is probably the best end in the state, although by a narrow margin. He worked well against the opposing tackle in opening holes, proved a remarkable dodger in carrying the ball, and an adept at either making or receiving forward passes. He was a whirlwind on defense.

At quarter-back, West starred in every department of the game. His generalship and mechanical work were the best in the state; he was good in interference, first down the field under punts, a star at returning punts, and in the Wesleyan game he made 12 points by place-kicking.

Smith, also of Lake Forest, is probably the most scientific punter in the West, and besides is a strong offensive player. The other half-back position goes to Clark of William and Vashti, a natural born football player, a remarkable dodger, line smasher and an adept in the use of the forward pass. In the Marquette game he was one-half the team on defense.

At full-back McMurray of Lincoln College, heavy, speedy and terrible on line plunges, deserves first choice. There is not another full-back in the state who is his equal.

The other four men to make up the first squad are Ryan of Shurtleff, McCleary of William and Vashti and Gates and Grogan of Knox. Ryan was the whole back-field of Shurtleff and in many games was one-half the team. Weighing 170 pounds, a remarkable sprinter, and clever in the use of the forward pass, he was a tower of strength either on offense or defense. He made all the scores credited to Shurtleff in 1911 by drop-kicks. McCleary, who is a 10 3/5 seconds man, and weighs 190 pounds, was used in many formations at tackle, although playing at half-back. At off-tackle smashes he was without an equal, besides being a tower of strength on defense. Had he been played at tackle all season he would undoubtedly have made the first team.

Gates is without doubt one of the best three half-backs in the state, although Schultz and Heffernan press him hard.

Lake Forest had far and away the strongest back-field in the State. William and Vashti came second and Millikin third. Knox also had the strongest line, Monmouth being second and Millikin third.

Foot Ball at Minor Colleges in Illinois

By W. F. COOLIDGE.

Director of Athletics, Shurtleff College.

Among the minor educational institutions of Illinois, the foot ball season of 1911 was notable for the number of colleges that were represented on the gridiron. As a rule good teams were produced, and the small score results would seem to indicate that the contests were well and evenly fought. When one considers that many of these teams were drawn from student bodies of less than 100 members it speaks well for the spirit and determination of the young men of our colleges.

Lincoln deserves great credit. Her team started out green, having had no foot ball for several years. The team slowly improved until at the close tied Shurtleff, 3—3; defeated last year's champions, Illinois Wesleyan, 6—0, and downed Charleston Normal, 10—8.

Shurtleff played one of the hardest schedules of any college in the State. She had a good defensive team, but failed to develop an offense. The Northern colleges were guilty again of playing too many teams from other States, and claiming rank on very slight basis, although there is no question but that Knox was the champion.

I herewith submit an All-State line-up among the minor colleges, which was selected by Coach Ashmore of James Millikin University, whose team played a strong and representative schedule. I enclose the selection:

Evans (Millikin) and Ryan (Shurtleff), ends.
Yoder (Millikin) and Feiker (Wesleyan), tackles.
Heffernan (Wesleyan) and Taubenach (Charleston Normal), guards.
Barclay (Knox), center.
West (Lake Forest), quarter-back.
Smith (Lake Forest) and Gates (Knox), half-backs.

The Missouri State championship, excluding institutions of the university class, was won by coach E. M. Tipton's eleven of Westminster College, Fulton, but not until the last day of the season, Thanksgiving Day, was the title decided. On that date the Westminster collegians defeated the Central College eleven, champions of 1910, by the decisive score of 27 to 6. The result was a surprise to the great majority of foot ball followers in Missouri. The Central College eleven had been "doped" to win, although their stock fell some when they lost to the strong Missouri Wesleyans of Cameron.

William Jewell of Liberty, coached by "Bud" Saunders, a former University of Missouri quarter-back, finished second in the race. The Jewells got away to a bad start, but finished the season in fine style. The Missouri Wesleyans were given third place and the Central College team fourth. The Wesleyans, coached by K. A. Schlademan, former DePauw end, were a factor in the race until defeated by the William Jewell eleven. Central, 1910 championship team, got a fine start by defeating William Jewell in the first game of the season in Kansas City, but injuries to players and the illness of Coach Kirke caused the team to slump, and defeats at the hands of the Missouri Wesleyans and Westminster put Fayette out of the running.

The Kirksville Normal, the Warrensburg Normal and the Tarkio eleven were not up to their usual standard. J. C. Elder turned out a fighting eleven at Tarkio, but the material was not of the right kind. Coach Kirke got his Kirksville Normals going at fine speed late in the season, two of his athletes finding a place on the All-Missouri eleven. Drury turned out a good team, although the Springfield collegians played few games with the other members of the association.

Much praise was showered upon the fast team of the Wentworth Military Academy of Lexington, which went through the season with only one defeat, and that to an inferior eleven. The cadets were coached by Thacher, captain of the University of Missouri eleven in 1910, and numbered among their gridiron achievements a 14 to 12 victory over the Westminster champions, a victory won on its merits, the cadets outplaying the collegians from whistle to whistle. Owing to the fact that Wentworth is a prep. school, the cadets are never ranked in the race for the college championship. However, Wentworth annually is compelled to go out of its class in athletics in order to meet with competition worthy of its teams. The 1911 foot ball collection was no exception to the rule of hard-to-beat teams.

All-Missouri Team for 1911

By E. A. REMLEY, ST. LOUIS.

The usual thankless task of selecting the All-Missouri team was rendered easier in 1911 because none of the minor teams in the State, such as Rolla, Warrensburg, William Jewell, or Westminster, showed sufficient class to entitle them to representation. Thus, that the strongest team may easily be picked from the three universities—Washington, St. Louis, and Missouri.

The Missouri University line was so much superior to that of both Washington and St. Louis that it deserves to be selected almost without change. Nevertheless, the work of Howe, St. Louis University, was so remarkable at times that he is given a place, even at the expense of such a good man as Barton of Missouri.

Wilson of Missouri weighs but 165 pounds, which is very light for center, but since he outplayed every man who opposed him the place cannot be denied him. Ed. Anderson of Missouri is selected for the other guard position on account of his splendid defensive qualities. Houston and Hastings of Missouri are a brace of fast, experienced tackles with sufficient weight for the job and are experts at opening holes for the back field.

Sieh and Ed. Stadtherr of St. Louis University are awarded the end positions for their great work in the Missouri game, when they nailed the runner in his tracks almost every time the ball was kicked. Their ends were never turned and few plays were slipped between them and the tackles.

Good quarter-backs are scarce in the State, and it is not a great honor for Johnny Maguire of St. Louis University, to be selected as the best. His work in the Missouri game was fairly heady and he showed a nice perception of the right time to open up the playing by trying a forward pass. Falvey of Washington should be Maguire's understudy.

Each of the three institutions is represented in the back field. Nipher of Washington is selected for full-back. He is the best punter developed in this section in several years, is a good line plunger and a strong defensive player. Wilder of Missouri is also a splendid man for this position, but Nipher's superior kicking gives him the edge.

Dexter of Missouri and Painter of St. Louis University are nominated for the half-back positions, with Zachritz as understudy. Both of these men are midgets, but are good dodgers and hard to get off their feet. Each is a good defensive man in addition and very heady. Three other men are in the same class with these; Lemire of Missouri, T. Stadtherr of St. Louis University and Sihler of Washington.

The University of Nebraska foot ball eleven was the class of the Missouri Valley Association in 1911. The Cornhuskers, under the tutelage of E. O. Stiehln, Wisconsin, swept through the Valley teams in a romp, playing superb foot ball and ending the season with one grand burst of dazzling brilliancy—a 6 to 6 game with Michigan at Lincoln. After that battle Fielding H. Yost, the Wolverine coach, is credited with admitting that Michigan was outplayed and was lucky to get away with a draw; and, in selecting an All-Western eleven, Yost named Shonka, the Nebraska tackle and captain, as the for most tackle in the West.

The only blot on the Nebraska schedule was a tie game with the Iowa Aggies. The score was 6 to 6. Overconfidence on the part of the Nebraskans when they met with a sturdy and unexpected resistance from Clyde Williams' men probably accounts for the score. However, they more than wiped the slate clean in later battles. Missouri fought Ames to a standstill, losing 5 to 6, and Nebraska mauled Missouri, 34 to 0. Missouri and Kansas played a 3 to 3 game, and Nebraska defeated Kansas, 29 to 0. In selecting a representative team of the Valley it was necessary to place seven Nebraskans on it. The team from Lincoln was fast and gloried in its shift formations, worked with speed and precision.

The other teams in the Valley conference, Ames, Kansas, Missouri, Washington University and Drake, were very evenly matched. Williams turned out one of his fighting machines at Ames, and Johnny Griffith rounded out a smooth eleven at Drake. Cayou's Washington eleven was one of the best that has represented the St. Louis university in years.

Foot ball was a disappointment both at Missouri and Kansas. The twenty-first annual game between these two universities resulted in a 3 to 3 count. The combat was waged at Columbia, the second time the game had been played away from Kansas City. For this reason the event lost much of its traditional trimmings and was attended by only 9,000 persons, while the game in Kansas City the year previous drew more than 18,000. Incidentally, it might be well to mention that the 1911 game in Columbia drew about $10,000, while the 1910 game in Kansas City drew more than $32,000.

C. L. Brewer, former Michigan Aggies coach, had charge of the Missouri eleven, which gave promise of putting up a great fight for the championship until the injury to Ted Hackney the Tiger star, around whom all the Missouri offense was woven. Tigers never recovered from that blow.

Ralph Sherwin, Dartmouth, spent his first season at Kansas and turned out a good eleven, although not in a class with the Nebraska scoring machine. The Jayhawkers skimmed through their preparatory games with a defeat, although Baker held them to a no-score game right off the reel. When the Kansans defeated Drake by a score of 11 to 3 the critics began to pick the former as the likeliest athletes to trim Nebraska. But Sherwin's team was overwhelmed in that game and never came back.

Before passing up Missouri Valley foot ball a few words of praise must be given to the team Bennie Owen turned out for the University of Oklahoma. Although not a member of the Conference, Oklahoma annually meets Missouri and Kansas. The Oklahomans invaded the home of the Tigers and the Jayhawkers in 1911, whipped the Tigers, 14 to 6, in their own lair and then stung the Jayhawkers, 3 to 0, at Lawrence. Owen had a light but well-balanced eleven, fast, shifty, tricky, passing the ball with lightning rapidity and accuracy. It was the best team in the Valley outside of Nebraska.

Alterations in Rules for 1912

The chief changes in the rules for the season of 1912 may be outlined in a few words, although their effect on the play will be considerable. The principal alteration was the addition of an extra down. Instead of three trials in which to advance the ball the specified distance of 10 yards, four are allotted. In other words, while the necessary average to the down last season was $3\frac{1}{3}$ yards, this distance now becomes $2\frac{1}{2}$ yards.

The field has also quite materially changed, as will be seen by reference to the diagram printed on the page preceding the rules in this GUIDE. The field was formerly 330 feet long. The goal posts have now been brought in so that the distance from one goal line to the other goal line is now 300 feet or an even 100 yards, but behind each goal the extra space, 10 yards, thus cut off is retained for the purposes of the forward pass; that is, a player may receive a forward pass in this end zone and it will still be legal. Formerly if a forward pass crossed the goal line it was a touch-back for the defenders of the goal, no matter whether an opponent caught it or not. Owing to the changes in the field the kick-off instead of being made as formerly from the middle of the field, the 55-yard line, will now be made from the 40-yard line of the side that is doing the kicking, that is, 60 yards from the goal towards which the ball is being kicked.

One other change of importance is that on the kick-out the opponents, instead of lining up on the 25-yard line of the opponents' goal, line up on the 20-yard line, and the ball must be kicked from some point behind that 20-yard line.

The intermission between the first and second and third and fourth periods has been shortened from two minutes to one minute.

Only one man of each side, instead of three, will be allowed to walk up and down the side lines. The office of field judge has been dispensed with and the three officials will now be the Referee, Umpire and Linesman. The restriction that the forward pass should not go over 20 yards has been removed and a forward pass of any distance is legal. The on-side kick has been cut out altogether; that is, a kicked ball striking the ground does not put the kicker's side on-side. The balance of the changes are of lesser importance. An endeavor has been made to simplify the rules and make the arrangement more satisfactory.

SECTION 2. Snapping the ball is putting it back from its position on the ground with one quick and continuous motion of the hand or hands or of the foot. Snapping the ball.

RULE VI.

Scrimmage. SECTION 3. A Scrimmage takes place when the holder of the ball places it flat upon the ground, with its long axis at right angles to the line of scrimmage and puts it in play by snapping it back. The scrimmage does not end until the ball is dead.

Line of Scrimmage. The Line of Scrimmage for each side is an imaginary line parallel to the goal line and passing through that point of the ball nearest the side's own goal line.

(It is evident from the definition that there must be two lines of scrimmage, one for each side, thus separating the two forward lines by a space equal to the length of the ball.)

If the snapper-back does not hold the long axis of the ball as specified, the ball must be put in play over again.

Off-side. SECTION 4. A player is Off-side when the ball has last been touched by one of his own side behind him.

Fair Catch. SECTION 5. A Fair Catch is catching the ball after it has been kicked by one of the opponents and before it touches the ground, or in similarly catching a "punt-out" by another of the catcher's own side, provided the player (except in case of punt-out, where no signal is necessary), while advancing toward the ball, signals his intention of making a fair catch by raising his hand clearly above his head and does not take more than two steps after making the catch.

Not a fair catch. It is not a fair catch if, after the kick, the ball was touched by another of the catcher's side before the catch.

RULE VI.

The mark of the catch is the spot at which the ball is actually caught. Mark of catch.

Opportunity to make a fair catch is where the player is in such a position that it would be possible for him to reach the ball before it touches the ground. Opportunity to make fair catch.

SECTION 6. A Goal from Touchdown is made by kicking the ball from the field of play over the cross-bar of the opponents' goal, by a place-kick direct, or by a place-kick preceded by a punt-out. Goal from Touchdown.

If the ball passes directly over one of the uprights, or if, after being kicked, it strikes an opponent and then passes over the cross-bar or one of the uprights, it shall count a goal. In no case shall it count a goal if the ball, after leaving the kicker's foot, touches the ground before passing over the cross-bar or uprights.

SECTION 7. A Goal from the Field is made by kicking the ball from the field of play over the cross-bar of the opponents' goal in any way except by a punt or a kick-off. Goal from the Field.

If the ball passes directly over one of the uprights, or if, after being kicked, it strikes an opponent and then passes over the cross-bar or one of the uprights, it shall count a goal. In no case shall it count a goal if the ball, after leaving the kicker's foot, touches the ground before passing over the cross-bar or uprights.

SECTION 8. A Foul is any violation of a rule. Foul.

RULE VI.

Out of Bounds. SECTION 9. The ball is Out of Bounds when either the ball or any part of the player who holds it touches the ground on or outside the side line or side line extended.

Tripping. SECTION 10. Tripping is obstructing a player below the knee with that part of the obstructing player's leg that is below the knee. Mere diving under the play is not tripping.

Hurdling. SECTION 11. Hurdling as used in the rules applies only to the man carrying the ball.

Hurdling in the open is jumping over or attempting to jump over an opponent who is still on his feet. (A man who is on his knee may be hurdled without penalty.)

Hurdling in the line is jumping over or attempting to jump over a player on the line of scrimmage, with both feet or both knees foremost, within the distance of 5 yards on either side of the point where the ball was put in play.

Down. SECTION 12. A Down occurs when the Referee blows his whistle or declares the ball dead.

NOTE—The Referee should never blow his whistle to indicate a foul, but if he inadvertently does so the ball is dead and the play shall stop.

Ball is dead. SECTION 13. The Ball is Dead (and no play can be made with it except according to rule):

When the Referee blows his whistle or declares that a down, fair catch, touchdown, touchback, safety or goal has been made.

The Referee should blow his whistle or declare the ball dead:

(a) When a player having the ball goes out of bounds, cries "down," or is so held that his forward progress is stopped, or when any portion of his person, except his hands or feet, touches the ground while he is in the grasp of an opponent;

(b) When the ball goes out of bounds after a kick, before touching a player who is on-side;

(c) When a forward pass becomes an incomplete pass, or when the ball, after being passed forward, goes out of bounds, or over the end line, or strikes the ground in the end zone, or strikes the goal bar or posts;

(d) When a kicked ball (except a kick-off or free kick) strikes the goal bar or posts, or goes over the goal line before being touched by a player of either side;

(e) When on a try-at-goal after touchdown the goal has either been made or missed;

(f) During enforcement of penalties.

Unless otherwise specified the ball is dead at the spot where it was when the Referee blew his whistle or declared it dead.

SECTION 14. A Touchdown is made when the ball lawfully in possession of a player is declared dead by the Referee, any part of it being on, above or behind the opponents' goal line. Touchdown.

The Touchdown is marked at the point, not where the ball is carried across the line, but where the ball is declared dead by the Referee. If the ball is carried across the extension of the side line the touchdown is marked at the intersection of the side line and the goal line.

Touchback. SECTION 15. A Touchback is made when the ball in possession of a player guarding his own goal is declared dead by the Referee, any part of it being on, above, or behind the goal line, provided the impetus which sent it to or across the line was given by an opponent.

It is a Touchback when a kicked ball (other than one from kick-off, free kick, or one scoring a goal from the field) goes over the goal line before being touched by a player of either side. If such a ball strikes the uprights or cross-bar it shall be considered as having crossed the goal line.

It is a Touchback when a player who is off-side and within the opponents' 10-yard line, is touched by a ball kicked by one of his own side.

It is a Touchback when a forward pass crosses either the end line or side line extended; when it strikes the goal posts or cross-bar, or when it touches the ground within the end zone.

It is a Touchback when a player on defense permits a ball, kicked by an opponent, to strike his person and then roll across the goal line and he or any player of his side then falls on it back of the line.

Not a Touchback. It is not a Touchback if such player juggles the ball so that he in any way forces it over the line and he or any player of his side then falls on it.

It is a Touchback if a foul is committed behind the opponents' goal line by the side which put the ball in play.

SECTION 16. A Safety is made when the ball in possession of a player guarding his own goal is declared dead by the Referee, any part of it being on, above or behind the goal line, provided the impetus which caused it to pass from outside the goal line to or behind the goal line was given by the side defending the goal. Such impetus could come :

(a) From a kick, pass, snap-back or fumble by one of the player's own side;

(b) From a kick which bounded back from an opponent or from one of the kicker's own side, who, when struck, was behind his goal line;

(c) In case a player carrying the ball is forced back, provided the ball was not declared dead by the Referee before the goal line was reached or crossed.

A Safety is made when a player of the side in possession of the ball makes a forward pass which becomes incompleated behind his goal line or commits a foul which would give the ball to the opponents behind the offender's goal line.

A Safety is made when the ball, kicked by a man behind his goal line, crosses the extended portion of either side line.

SECTION 17. Crawling is an attempt by Crawling.

RULE VI.

the runner to advance the ball after it has been declared dead.

If a player extends his arms, pushing the ball ahead after it has been declared dead, it is crawling.

RULE VII.KICK-OFF

First and third periods. SECTION 1. (a) The captains of the opposing teams shall toss up a coin before the game. The winner of the toss shall have the choice of goal or kick-off. If the winner of the toss selects the goal, the loser must take the kick-off. The loser of the toss shall have the same privileges at the beginning of the third period as the winner of the toss had at the beginning of the game.

Second and fourth periods. (b) At the beginning of the second and fourth periods the teams shall change goals, the possession of the ball, the down, the relative spot of the down, and the distance to be gained to remain the same as at the termination of the preceding period.

After scoring. (c) The teams shall not change goals after a try-at-goal following a touchdown, nor after a goal from the field, but the side just scored upon shall have the option of kicking off or having their opponents kick off.

Ball kicked across goal line. SECTION 2. At kick-off, if the ball is kicked across the goal line and is there declared dead when in the possession of one of the side defending the goal, it is a touchback.

If the ball is not declared dead, the side defending the goal may run with it or kick it exactly as if it had not crossed the goal line.

If it is declared dead in possession of one of the attacking side, provided that the man was on-side, it is a touchdown.

RULE VIII.POSITION OF PLAYERS AT KICK-OFF.

SECTION 1. The side having the kick-off shall kick-off from its own 40-yard line at a point equidistant from the side lines. Point of Kick-off.

SECTION 2. The kicker's side shall be behind the ball when it is kicked. Kicker's side.

RULE IX.POSITION OF PLAYERS AT SCRIMMAGE.

SECTION 1. When the ball is put in play by a scrimmage, at least seven players of the side holding the ball shall be on the line of scrimmage. Seven players on scrimmage line.

RULE IX.

Player on

A player shall be considered to be on the line of scrimmage if he has both hands or both feet up to or within one foot of this line, or if he has one foot and the opposite hand up to or within one foot of it. He shall also stand with both feet outside the outside foot of the player next to him, unless he be one of the two men standing on either side of and next to the snapper-back (commonly known as guards), in which case he may lock legs with the snapper-back.

The snapper-back may assume any position, so long as he is not off-side in putting the ball in play.

The position on the line of the men in the scrimmage is governed by the pictures in the back of the book.

Center, Guards and Tackles.

The playing of a so-called center, guard or tackle on defense, as an end or back on offense, or any other shifting of men in attempted evasion of this rule, is construed to be within the prohibition. Otherwise, so far as the defense is concerned, the captain is not restrained in placing his men. If a captain desires to shift the center, guard or tackle into the back-field, he may do so on speaking to the Referee. But the player so shifted shall not again return to one of these middle line positions. Any one of these men may, however, be taken five yards back without consulting the Referee and may return again to his position.

SECTION 3. The Linesman shall have jurisdiction over, and shall report to the Umpire, any off-side play in the line and any tripping of ends after a kick.

SECTION 4. He shall keep the time and shall use a stop-watch for this purpose. He should start the watch, not when the Referee orders play to begin, but when the ball is put in play.

He shall notify the Captains of the time remaining for play not more than ten nor less than five minutes before the end of each half; and he may, upon inquiry, give the approximate remaining time to a Captain at any time during the game, provided he does not comply with such a request more than three times during the last five minutes of either half.

Notes

Note 1. Timing and Signals of Officials.

It is desirable to have a stop-watch for the Linesman, a whistle for the Referee and a horn of some kind for the Umpire and Linesman, in order to distinguish their calls from that of the Referee.

Note 2. Rule III., Section 1.

For the purpose of designating the positions the accompanying diagram is inserted.

CUSTOMARY NAMING OF POSITIONS.

Note 3. Rule VI., Section 11; Rule XXIV., Section 4—Stepping Over a Player.

Mere stepping over a prostrate player, though the player so doing may have momentarily both feet in the air at the same time, is construed as not being within the definition or prohibition of hurdling.

Note 4. Rule XII.

In case of a place-kick the kicker may touch or adjust the ball in the hands of the holder so long as the ball does not touch the ground.

Note 5. Rule XIII., Section 5.

The penalty under Rule XIII., Section 5, is to be enforced, though it results in placing the offending side behind its own goal line. A second offense behind the goal line is to be penalized exactly as if it had occurred inside the field of play.

Note 6. Rule XIX., Section 5.

Of course the provisions of this section do not apply in a case where a forward pass is made by a team from behind its own goal line.

Note 7. Rule XIX., Section 6 (a).

It follows that a player who is more than one foot back of the scrimmage line and not one yard back of the scrimmage line is not eligible in any event to receive a forward pass. He cannot receive it as being the player on the end of the scrimmage line, for he is not on the scrimmage line under Rule IX., Section 1. He cannot receive it as a player back of the scrimmage line, because he is not at least one yard back.

Note 8. Rule XXIX., Section 5.

Captains and players may not, however, appeal to the Referee or Linesman for their testimony on points involving disqualification.

Officials' List American Intercollegiate Foot Ball Rules Committee, 1912

(Subject to Additions and Corrections.)

It is difficult for the Central Board to attempt to publish a complete list of satisfactory field officials, but in order to put the results of their work in more concrete form and preserve these data for convenience of managers, have prepared the enclosed partial list of men who have proved most serviceable to the sectional committees in the East, West and South. It is hoped this will be of permanent value and simplify future arrangements.

We take great pleasure in extending this to those whom it may aid.

(Signed) CENTRAL BOARD ON OFFICIALS.

SUGGESTIONS FROM THE CENTRAL BOARD.

The Central Board on Officials in concluding its work for the year would suggest the following plan for its work in the future:

That the Central Board should be appointed by the Rules Committee whose function, (a) should be advisory, rendering assistance as indicated; (b) to assist by public interpretations of the foot ball rules; (c) to maintain a certain control over sectional boards in the management of executive details; (d) to publish lists of accredited officials; (e) to offer recommendations for the conduct of these officials; (f) to arrange meetings for interpretation; (g) when advisable arrange conferences tending to the formation of sectional boards.

NOTES.—Intercollegiate foot ball, both in America and England, dates from the contest between Princeton and Rutgers, November 6, 1869, played under an original set of rules. In 1873 delegates from Princeton, Rutgers and Yale drew up a code based upon the Association rules. This code was known as the "Rules of 1873," and under it the first Princeton-Yale game, in 1873, was played. In 1875 representatives of Harvard and Yale drew up a code, known at the time as the "Concessionary Rules," which was based partially upon the Rugby Union rules. Under these rules the first Harvard-Yale game was played, 1875, the score being computed by goals alone. The following year, November 26, 1876, Columbia, Harvard, Princeton and Yale drafted an elaborate set of rules, largely following the Rugby Union Rules which, with the many changes introduced since that time, is the present intercollegiate code. In the original intercollegiate rules of 1876 Rule 7 provided: "A match shall be decided by a majority of touchdowns; a goal shall be equal to four touchdowns, but in case of a tie a goal kicked from a touchdown shall take precedence over four touchdowns." In the Harvard-Yale and Princeton-Yale games of 1876 and 1877 Yale exacted a special rule that the score should be computed by goals alone, following the English rule therefor. In 1881 the following rule was adopted: "In case of a tie a goal kicked from a touchdown shall take precedence over a goal otherwise kicked. If the game still remains a tie, the side which makes four or more safeties less than their opponents shall win the game." In 1882 the rule was added: "In scoring, four touchdowns shall take precedence over a goal kicked from the field; two safeties shall be equal to a touchdown." Numerical scoring was adopted in 1883 as follows: safety 1, touchdown 2, goal from touchdown 4, goal from the field 5. These values were changed the following year as follows: safety 2, touchdown 4, goal from touchdown 2. In 1897 the value of a touchdown was increased to 5 points, and the value of a goal following a touchdown was reduced to 1 point. In 1904 the value of a goal from the field was reduced to 4 points, and in 1909 to 3 points. In 1912 the value of a touchdown was increased to 6 points.

played under the Rugby Union Rules, touchdowns were not counted in computing the score. Safeties became a scoring play in 1881 under a rule which provided: "In a game, otherwise a tie, the side which makes four or more safeties less than their opponents shall win the game." In 1882 the rule was, "In scoring, four touchdowns shall take precedence over a goal from field and two safeties shall be equal to a touchdown." Numerical scoring was established in 1883. No games were played in 1884, 1888, 1895 and 1896.

Notes—The game of 1873 was played under the "Rules of 1873," a modification of the Association code. The games of 1876 and 1877 were played under the Intercollegiate Rules, but a special rule was adopted that the score should be computed by goals only. Under the rules of 1882 two safeties equalled a touchdown. The game of 1884 was called before completion, Princeton having scored 4 points and Yale 6. The referee, under Rule 22, declared the contest "no game." The game of 1886 terminated similarly to the game of 1884, Yale having scored 4 points and Princeton 0.

† These four goals, scored in the original Harvard-Yale game, were made under a special rule, to wit: "To secure a goal the ball must pass between the goal posts and over a cross-line, 10 feet high." (Rule 4, Concessionary Rules.) This rule allowed goals to be kicked by punts as well as by drop- and place-kicks. No records are in existence as to the distances.

Morell, Washington.
Hurst, Ames.
E. Frank, Nebraska.
Weyrauch, Ames.
Gibson, Nebraska.

Foot ball officials who worked in the 1911 Missouri Valley Conference games agreed that "Dike" Nipher, the star kicker of Washington University, was one of the two best half-backs in the valley.

J. C. Masker, J. C. Grover, Dr. I. Anderson, C. E. McBride, and Dr. J. A. Reilly, in announcing their selections of the best three all-star squads of the valley give positions to six members of the champion Nebraska eleven and Kansas, Missouri, Ames, Drake, and Washington one each.

The back-field players probably are the strongest that could be made from the conference material. Jerry Warner, the Nebraska quarter-back, stands head and shoulders above any other quarter in the valley.

Owen Frank of Nebraska and Nipher of the Washington University are a wonderful pair of half-backs, fast and great runners, through a broken field. Nipher is a punter of unusual ability.

Ammons, the Kansas captain, is a great line plunger, probably the best in the valley. Ammons did not have a chance to show his real worth in 1911 until the Missouri game, the last of the season, as Sherwin, the Kansas coach, endeavored to strengthen the line by using Ammons as a tackle. The Jayhawker leader failed as a lineman, and the coach sent him back to his old position. An injured shoulder kept Ammons out of the Nebraska game, with the exception of ten minutes. But the Tiger game saw the Kansas captain at his best. Had Ammons played his old position all season, he would be above comparison with any full-back in the valley.

Shonka, the Nebraska tackle and captain, probably will be an unanimous choice for all the mystic Missouri Valley teams. A power both on defense and offense, Shonka is given the captaincy of the team by right of having led the championship Nebraska eleven.

McCormick, the great Drake tackle, is a fit mate for the mighty Cornhusker.

The Nebraska guards, Elliott and Hornberger, are good for those positions after a careful look over the guard material.

Wilson, the scrappy Tiger center, has earned the position by the fighting qualities in his foot ball make-up.

At the end positions, Chauner easily is the class of the valley.

Chappell, the speedy Iowa Aggie wing man, was given an edge over Shuck, of Missouri and Brownlee of Kansas.

For many of the positions the choice of first, second and third string men was very close.

CARNEGIE TECHNICAL SCHOOLS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Foot Ball in Missouri, Southern Illinois and the Southwest

By JOHN R. BENDER,
Director of Athletics, St. Louis University.

The season of 1911 was one full of surprises all over the country. Yale and Harvard, considered leaders in the East, were surpassed by Princeton. Michigan, last year's Western Champions, were tied by Syracuse and Nebraska, and beaten by Cornell. Chicago, who suffered a miserable defeat at Minnesota, defeated Cornell and beat Wisconsin, who tied Minnesota. The uncertainty of the rules are to a large extent responsible for the upsets.

The Missouri Valley championship, held by Nebraska in 1910 and claimed by them in 1911, is disputed by Ames, who held the powerful Cornhuskers to a 6-6 tie. However, Nebraska, due to her great scores made against the other Valley Schools, is entitled to first place.

In Missouri the State championship again fell into the hands of St. Louis University, who, after Washington University and Missouri played a 5-5 tie, defeated Missouri 5-0 for the title.

St. Louis University, like last season, was developed slowly and finished her season in a blaze of glory, holding the fast Syracuse eleven, the only team to win from Carlisle, to a 6-6 score.

Missouri State University had excellent material and looked good in the early season, but owing to the loss of Captain Hackney, its most valuable man, the team was completely disorganized and had a bad year. However, with Coach Brewer again at the helm and Capt. Hackney back, Missouri looks like a strong contender for the championship in 1912. Missouri's tie game, 3-3, last year against Kansas, who outweighed the Tigers, deserve special mention.

Washington University of St. Louis, had one of the best teams in her history, holding Missouri and Drake to a tie score and playing the strong Indiana eleven a close game. In "Dike" Nipher, Washington had the best punter in the Valley. He was selected as an All-Missouri College back and rightly deserves the place. Coach Cayou, the old Illinois and Carlisle star, is to be commended on the great team he produced.

Among the colleges of Missouri, Westminster, by defeating Central College, 27-6, is entitled to the State college championship. Westminster had a big and fast eleven. The Central College team developed early and looked like a championship possibility, but "dope" went wrong, and it was probably a little too much over-confidence that caused them to lose. William Jewell College had a strong team and played good, consistent ball.

The Rolla Miners, who were close competitors with St. Louis and Missouri Universities for the 1910 State championship, had a poor season. This was due in part to the green material and to the loss of her two great stars, Macomber and Wagstaff. Drury College, coached by Wagstaff, the former Miners' star half-back, lowered the Miners' colors in a close and exciting game, 5-0. Cape Girardeau had its usual fast, light team, and in quarter-back Bernard. Coach Schulte had a star of the first magnitude. Tarkio College, Warrensburg and Kirksville Normal had good representative teams and played well. Springfield Normal did nicely, considering the material. Missouri Valley College had no team. Wentworth, Kemper, Western and Blees Military Academies put out their usual strong teams.

WILLIAMSPORT DICKINSON SEMINARY.

The Old St. Louis Inter-scholastic League was disbanded in 1911, but will no doubt be revived this year. Central High School won from Soldan High, 8—2, for the inter-scholastic title. Smith Academy was not up to the 1910 standard and was defeated by Central, Soldan, St. Louis University undergraduates and Loyola Hall.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS COLLEGES.

Among the Southern Illinois colleges, James Milliken is considered the 1911 leader, having lost only one game, that to Knox College, 12—0, the latter probably being the best college team in the State.

Illinois Wesleyan, last year's champions, were not up to their 1910 form, but won sufficient games to entitle her to second place. William and Vashli and Lombard Colleges tied for third place, playing each other a nothing-up game. Shurtleff College did not play the game they did the previous season, but made a creditable showing. In Quarter-back Ryan, Coach Coolidge has a star good enough for any team. Lincoln College is conceded fourth place with Shurtleff, having played a 3—3 game. Illinois College, Hedding, Charleston Normal, Bradley and Carbondale Normal had fair teams, and rank in the order mentioned.

SOUTHWESTERN FOOT BALL.

In Kansas, the State University, by defeating the Aggies, are entitled to the championship. Southwestern College also defeated the Aggies, 6—5, but the Aggies by defeating Arkansas University, 3—0, should be entitled to second place. Fairmount College had a very good team and deserves a place near the top, having badly defeated Southwestern.

Washburn, Baker and Ottawa all had good teams and deserve favorable mention. The Haskell Indians had a better season than in 1910, and under the direction of Coach Kennedy are due to prosper.

Oklahoma University had one of the best teams in the history of that institution, and easily won the State title. Defeated Missouri, 14—6; Kansas, 3—0, and Texas, 6 to 0. The "Sooners" made a total of 279 points to their opponents 6. Oklahoma should be entitled to the championship of Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas, St. Louis University being given the preference in Missouri owing to her strong showing against Syracuse.

Arkansas University was greatly crippled on account of losing a number of their players, although winning the State Championship, the team was not quite up to the standard of 1910. Among the smaller colleges, Ouachita, Hendrix, and Henderson played good ball, but were not in the same class with Arkansas.

In Texas, Coach Allerdice won the State title for Texas University, defeating A. and M. College in a close and exciting game before 16,000 people. A. and M. ranks second, and Baylor University, under Coach Ralph Glaze, is tied for third place with Southwestern. Austin College, Poly. T. C. U., Trinity and Daniel Baker follow in the order named.

It remains part of the writer's duty to select an All-State team, Washington University, Missouri University and St. Louis University being considered. St. Louis University having won the State championship for two years would naturally be looked to for the best material. The following would be a representative team, everything considered:

Shuck (Missouri) and Morrell (Washington), ends.

T. Stadtherr (St. Louis) and Moran (St. Louis), tackles.

Hastings (Missouri) and Schloemer (St. Louis), guards.

Higley (St. Louis), center.

Foot ball had its greatest year in Kansas in 1911. The race for the collegiate championship, University of Kansas barred, was close all the way, and at the finish there was only a shade of difference between Fairmount, the championship eleven, and Baker, the runner-up. And the College of Emporia, the Emporia Normals, the Aggies and Washburn were closely bunched in the list of trailers.

Coach Roy Thomas had a squad of unusual ability at Fairmount. Only one game was lost, that with the Aggies by a 5 to 9 score. Officials and foot ball critics who saw this game were of the opinion that the best team lost, luck playing the leading role in the victory of the Aggies. Baker, later, lost to Fairmount, 5 to 6, and defeated the Aggies, 3 to 0. The college of Emporia lost to Fairmount, 17 to 24.

L. D. Scherer, a former University of Chicago player, turned out a fine team at Baker, one that opened its season by playing the University of Kansas a no-score battle. Baker lost only one game in Kansas, that with the Fairmount champions.

Emporia was fortunate in having two fine foot ball teams, rivals for the State championship until the season was nearly over and intense rivals for the championship of Emporia until the title was settled in the annual Thanksgiving Day game. In this struggle the Emporia State Normal eleven defeated the College of Emporia, a result that surprised many of the wise ones in Kansas foot ball. Honhart coached the Normal team and Hargiss the collegians. Each mentor had a well-drilled eleven and one to be proud of.

The Washburn team of Topeka came like a whirlwind at the finish. W. L. Driver, a former Missouri player, coached the Congregationalists and turned out an eleven that was romping in fine style near the close of the season. Washburn held Kansas to a 6 to 14 score, being defeated through the agency of Carl Delaney, the Kansas kicker, who drop-kicked nine points for the Jayhawkers.

The Aggies also finished the season in whirlwind style, after a bad start. Guy S. Lowman, who coached the team for the first time, found a green squad that was slow to pick up the game. However, hard work told and the Aggies came in powerful strides after an overwhelming defeat at the hands of the Nebraskans.

Coach Quigley had a green bunch at St. Mary's, a squad with few old players, and Costello, the captain, was out of the game on account of an operation for appendicitis. The eleven, however, always showed a lot of fight, but was outclassed in the majority of the games.

Nebraska Foot Ball Season

By A. F. HOLSTE.

Athletic Director, Hastings College.

The 1911 foot ball season among the colleges of Nebraska was an interesting one and, as is the case in most sections, was full of surprises. It marked the entrance of two additional institutions for this sport—Omaha and Cotner Universities. Both did creditable work and may be counted on for a better showing in 1912.

Peru and Central City played only a few games and did not show much strength. Grand Island, with an excellent squad, played good foot ball, but lost all important games by close scores.

Kearney Normal, by defeating Hastings, had sweet dreams of a championship until the rude awakening on Thanksgiving Day, when the team was defeated by Peru, which had been beaten by Doane.

As has been the case for a number of years the race for supremacy was by the teams of Bellevue, Hastings, Doane and Wesleyan. At the beginning Doane looked like an almost certain winner of the coveted honor. With eight of the 1910 strong eleven and a large squad to pick from it won all the early games by big scores. It seems as though the team struck its stride too soon and then slumped. It lost to Wesleyan, Hastings and Bellevue.

Next to Doane the early indications were promising for Bellevue. This team, too, had eight of last year's eleven back and a good squad to fill up from. The men individually, however, were not as experienced and capable as the Doane players. After losing to Hastings and Wesleyan the team pulled itself together and beat Doane, an unexpected victory to many who had seen both teams play.

Unlike the outlook for Doane and Bellevue the prospect at Hastings was the poorest in many seasons. In fact, after a month of practice, the writer did not expect to win a single college game. The squad consisted of but sixteen boys, inexperienced and very light. The two ends, one guard, one tackle and one half-back and four subs of last year were back. On October 14 the team was defeated by Kearney Normal in a contest previously considered a practice game.

Then the team began to improve, defeating Grand Island, Bellevue and Doane in succession. On November 17 Hastings faced Wesleyan for the state championship, which the former lost by the score of 12 to 5. Although outweighed ten to fifteen pounds to the man and with one regular end and one regular half-back out of the line-up it outplayed its opponents, earning one touchdown and carrying the ball twice to the one-yard line, where it was lost on downs.

Wesleyan's outlook was uncertain. Most of the old men failed to return, but the squad to pick from was large. The team showed no great strength in the early games, winning by very small scores. Like Princeton of the eastern "Big Four," Wesleyan won all the important games by disastrous offensive plays on the part of her opponents and not because of her own aggressive strength. After being outplayed by Grand Island she finally won by blocking a punt on the twenty-five-yard line and getting a safety.

Foot Ball in Iowa

Iowa State Teachers' College.

Selected by Coaches and Officials.

Chappell (Ames) and Latimer (Ames), ends.
Rutledge (Ames) and Frye (Teachers' College), tackles.
Trickey (Iowa) and Hanson (Iowa), guards.
O'Brien (Iowa), center.
West (Cornell), quarter-back.
Simons (Drake) and Kramm (Cornell), half-backs.
Murphy (Iowa), full-back.

It is the consensus of opinion that the season of 1911, for widespread interest, record attendance, quality of play, lack of injuries, close and exciting games and good sportsmanship, surpassed any preceding year of the great gridiron sport in Iowa. The State may fairly be taken as representative of the Middle West in College athletics, having over a score of colleges and universities, and the record of its representative teams against those of the neighboring States gives Iowa a front rank in the development of the modern game. Ames held Minnesota, the Western Conference champions, to a single touchdown, and played Nebraska to a tie, thus establishing a claim for the Missouri Valley championship, while Iowa held Wisconsin to a 12 to 0 score, and defeated Northwestern and Purdue.

Much interest centered in the State championship game between Iowa and Ames. Iowa had played in hard luck all season, her quarter-back and field general being injured in the opening game and unable to play most of the time. Ames, on the other hand, had played a consistent game all through the season, and had developed a new style of kicking that, with fast ends, was most effective. For three quarters, the two teams battled on Iowa's frozen and slippery field without a score. At last one of Burge's kicks got past Curry and was recovered by the Ames end on Iowa's 35-yard line. This gave Burge the opportunity of scoring by a pretty field goal that won the game. A touchdown was made just before the close of play on a recovered fumble, making the score 9 to 0.

By also defeating Drake and Cornell, Ames won the State title and is given first place by all the coaches. Cornell deserves second place, for, while conquered by Ames, she defeated Iowa and Grinnell as well as many of the lesser teams. Iowa is given third place on account of the form displayed throughout a hard schedule. Drake would rank fourth, having played only Ames and Grinnell of the big teams of the State. For fifth place, there were several contenders. Grinnell probably deserves the distinction because of the showing against both Drake and Cornell, although Des Moines, Leander Clark and Teachers' College could rightfully dispute this honor.

In picking an All-State team, a letter was sent to all the coaches and to the prominent officials for their selection, and the following is a compilation of their replies:

For ends, Chappell and Latimer of Ames are given first choice on account of their effectiveness on Burge's punts. Both are fast men and successful in recovering the ball. Sells of Simpson, and E. West of Cornell were also mentioned for these positions. For tackles, Rutledge of Ames was the first choice for the right side, and Frye of

WOOSTER (OHIO) UNIVERSITY.

Teachers' College was selected as his running-mate. Rutledge's work was strong on both offense and defense, and Frye was a tower of strength in carrying the ball. Alexander of Iowa was also mentioned, but he had been on the sick list and somewhat off his game in the early part of the season.

For guards, Hanson and Trickey of Iowa showed the strongest combination of the year. Hanson's punting ability assures him the first choice, while Trickey's defense against such teams as Minnesota and Wisconsin, places him on the honor list without question. Several other good guards were developed, among them Captain Whitsell of Cornell, Reeves of Drake, and Pfund of Ames. For center, every one was agreed on O'Brien of Iowa. Given the honor on the All-Western and All-Conference elevens, there was no question but that O'Brien was the peer of all the centers of the West.

Behind the line, the material was scarcer or else those chosen were much superior in ability, as the choice was nearly unanimous in each case. For quarter-back, West of Cornell is given first place. He was the life of his team and was practically the one man who defeated Iowa. He was mentioned by many as the best field general produced in the State in 1911. Hurst of Ames is a close second to West, and by many was regarded as a better general, though not quite so good an individual player.

For half-backs, Kramm of Cornell and Simons of Drake are the general favorites. Kramm is big, hits the line hard and low, and runs fast, negotiating the 100 yards close to 10 seconds. Simons' work was consistent and his punting ability, as shown in the Ames game, entitles him to the other position. Captain Murphy of Iowa was the almost unanimous choice for full-back, and in addition was given the honor of captain of the All-State eleven. His terrific line-plunging was always sure of good gains, while his alertness and accuracy in solving the opponents' plays, mark him as a player of extraordinary ability. Burge of Ames was the only other man mentioned for this position, and were the team in need of a strong punter, I should place Burge at one end for he was doubtless as good a punter as the State produced.

With most of this material back, the season of 1912 should produce some revelations in the development of the great college game.

ALL-TEXAS ELEVEN.

Foot Ball in Texas

BY J. BURTON RIX, DARTMOUTH.

It is doubtful if in any other section of the country were so entirely diverse styles of foot ball observable as those exemplified by the two leading teams of the State during the past season. While the University of Texas adopted the extremely open plays, quick shifts, and an abundance of kick formations, Agricultural and Mechanical College, on the other hand, clung with great persistence to heavy, close, formations, varied to a certain extent by shifts, split bucks, etc. She had, it is true, a number of well-planned forward pass and kick formations, but these plays were not gotten off with the rapidity and precision necessary to formations of this character. It is not to be inferred, however, that in electing the style of play they did, the Agricultural and Mechanical College coaches were at all ignorant of the possibilities of the open game. The style of play adopted by them was, to a great extent, determined by the material available. The men were heavy, remarkably powerful, and well versed from previous schooling in formations of almost irresistible power. Had the college won the principal game of the year, that with the University of Texas, there is but little doubt that the heavy formations adopted, and so well adapted to the material at hand, would have been viewed by critics as the only proper ones under the circumstances.

The play of the University of Texas, as has been remarked, was very open, replete with wide shifts, split bucks, and a great variety of deceptive punt and forward pass formations. This style of play was, as in the case with Agricultural and Mechanical College, largely the result of circumstance; it was dependent upon the men available. To a great extent, although by no means exclusively, for this would have defeated its own purpose, these plays were built up around two very fast open-field runners and an unusually able kicker.

To a greater or less degree the open play of the University was favored by the other Texas colleges, with the exception of Agricultural and Mechanical, whose style has been previously described. But the coaches of these latter colleges by no means adopted their plays from those of the University. They developed their teams along somewhat the same lines, but with considerable originality of formation, and, on the whole, struck more of a medium between the two extremes of the University and Agricultural and Mechanical College.

In summing up the records of the various teams of the State, those that stand out most prominently are the University of Texas and Agricultural and Mechanical College. By its defeat of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, at Houston, the University of Texas won what is generally considered by most critics to be the undisputed championship of the State. Next to the University would be ranked without question the Agricultural and Mechanical College, and below this college, but not necessarily in the order named, Southwestern University, Baylor University and Austin College. The question of ranking these latter three institutions is greatly complicated by comparative scores. Southwestern, particularly in games with out-of-state colleges, such as Arkansas and Louisiana State, showed a good deal of strength, but, after a tie with Baylor, was defeated in its final game of the season by Austin College. Baylor, while defeated by Austin early in the season, developed strongly toward the end and in the last game was able to push Agricultural and Mechanical College much more closely than either Southwestern or Austin had done. Taking into consideration merely the games in which Austin played against Southwestern and Baylor, it would seem that the former is logically entitled to first place, yet, considering her entire schedule and the defeat by Fort Worth Polytechnic College, it is difficult to say whether or not she should be ranked above either Southwestern or Baylor.

In addition to the above teams, others worthy of note are Trinity University, Fort Worth Polytechnic College and Texas Christian University.

In selecting an All-Texas team the men must necessarily be chosen very largely for individual ability. The general object, however, has been to secure the best rounded team, the ablest in all departments of the game, that it would be possible to develop from a hypothetical squad, consisting of the leading players of the State. In one instance it has been necessary to shift a man from the position he occupied on his individual team to one for which he is more naturally adapted.

Foot Ball in the Southwest

BY CAPTAIN H. E. VAN SURDAM,
Superintendent El Paso Military Institute.

Probably in no section of the country has foot ball grown so rapidly in popularity as it has in the Southwest. Forced as teams are to travel long distances in order to meet their rivals it is a wonder that the game has any hold at all.

Every team save Roswell, played better foot ball in 1911 than they did the year before. The University of New Mexico especially deserves credit for the fine showing made. This was due to the work of Coach Hutchinson. The "Aggies" with an old experienced team under the careful tutelage of Coach Radenoch, came through the season with a clean slate. It is the writer's opinion that if the "Aggies" had met either Institute or Arizona about the middle of November their colors would have been lowered.

The Arizona team did not strike its gait until the Institute game, and then, with Roletti playing, the best they could do was a tie score. Taking scores only into consideration I am forced to give the "Aggies" first place, Arizona and E. P. M. I. tied for second place; University of New Mexico, third; Roswell, fourth; El Paso Y. M. C. A., fifth, and El Paso High School, sixth. The writer picks the All-Southwestern team from the entire Southwest. He has seen every team in action except Roswell.

The ends go to Roletti of Arizona and Boat of the "Aggies." Both of these men played in the back-field, but because of their experience, weight and defensive ability as well as ability to carry the ball, I have moved them to end. The tackle positions would be capably handled by Johnson of the Institute and Hamilton of the University of New Mexico. McCarthy of the Institute was a good man, but he plays his best game at full-back. Guard positions go to Lawrence Baldwin of the Institute and Closson of Roswell. Seldom have I seen a pluckier guard than Baldwin. Center is well taken care of by J. Quesenberry of the "Aggies." He makes a heady, aggressive pivot and is absolutely dependable. The quarter-back position goes to Chenoweth. For full-back I find three good men, McElroy of Arizona, Keady of the Institute, and Bausman of the "Aggies." As all three are fast, and good line plungers and being exceptionally strong on the defensive I would place Keady at full-back and McElroy and Bausman at halves.

Foot Ball in the Pacific Northwest

BY ROSCOE FAWCETT.

Except for a tremendous reserve power displayed by Washington University in the three crucial games of the fall, foot ball in the Pacific Northwestern College Conference went skimming through the campaign of 1911 just about as "doped" out by ye gridiron sooth-sayer.

Washington won the championship for the fourth consecutive time, by a greater margin than ever. Oregon University and the Oregon Agricultural College tied for second, although the two ancient rivals did not meet, while Washington State College, Idaho University and Whitman College followed in the above order. Idaho's transposition with Washington State furnished the only change in the percentage column from the year previous.

Coach Gilmour Dobie's remarkable record with Washington was by far the predominant feature. With his great kicker, Eakins, passed into the discard, and minus the services of "Polly" Grimm, another great tackle, and one or two other stars, the former Minnesota quarter-back started the season under a severe handicap, and rival coaches exerted themselves with a view to breaking in on Dobie's seven years of coaching without a single defeat.

These scores tell the story of the ineffectual efforts: Washington, 17, Idaho, 0; Washington, 34; Oregon Agricultural College, 0; Washington, 29; Oregon, 3; Washington, 30, Washington State, 6. A magnificent conception of the possibilities of the denatured foot ball rules, together with the individual work of Quarter-back Coyle and Right Half-back Muckleston, proved the undoing of the opposing schools.

Washington, in 1911 array, could undoubtedly have beaten many of the Eastern leaders, although Princeton, Harvard, Yale, Carlisle, Minnesota and Michigan would probably have had the edge by one or two touchdowns. Dobie's team average in weight was close to 178 pounds, Grimm, at left end, topping the list at 189 pounds, so it can be readily seen that the Seattle squad was exceptionally evenly balanced.

Oregon's team, under W. J. Warner, veteran Cornell lineman, proved something of a disappointment for the eleven had been figured to do better than 29—3 against Washington. Supporters, however, are prone to take into consideration that a tutor labors under an immense handicap when he is forced to develop a team with new and old material about evenly divided. As a result Warner handed in his resignation at the close of the year. Captain Main was the Oregon star, winning the Washington State game, 6—0, by a seventy-yard wriggle through the entire Pullman team, and later pulling the 8—5 Whitman contest out of the fire by a field goal in the final quarter.

The work of Coach Sam Dolan, former Notre Dame star, at the Oregon Agricultural College afforded pleasurable surprise to his many friends throughout the West. With a light squad, averaging under 165 pounds, against a minimum of 175 pounds for Washington, Washington State and Oregon, and without the services of a single individual star, Dolan moulded out an eleven that defeated Washington State, 6—0, and made, on the whole, as good a showing as Oregon University. Dolan's men closed the season on Thanksgiving Day with a 5—3 victory over Whitman college, accomplished by a combination triple pass-punt, which was recovered beyond the twenty-yard zone for the lonesome touchdown. The work of Reynolds, 124-pound quarter-back, featured the Corvallis play.

Washington State College turned the tables on Idaho 17—0, but as the Pullman "Farmers" possessed the heaviest squad in the Conference, even more had been expected of Osthoff's charges. From tackle to tackle the Staters averaged 195 pounds.

Despite the defeat by Washington State, Idaho University partisans will probably look back upon the season of 1911 as successful, for coach Griffith's men held Washington to the closest score of the fall and defeated Whitman, about equal in weight, by 5—0. Griffith is rated as one of the foremost mentors in the Conference, but he is lamentably shy on material with which to build even near-champion teams.

Whitman, possessing one of the lighter elevens, finished the campaign with four consecutive defeats, but the fact that three of the losses went by less than a six-point margin—Oregon, 8—5; Oregon "Aggies," 5—3, and Idaho, 5—0, puts Archie Hahn's stock somewhat higher up on the market. Hahn's team fought bitterly in every game, but the great iron-jawed gridiron jinx seemed to rule over the Missionaries' camp.

Royal Niles of Whitman was made the unanimous choice for All-Conference full-back, for his wonderful punting, coupled with terrific offensive and defense play, shone forth like a miniature Kohinoor on a red flannel shirt.

In the non-Conference division Willamette University outclassed everything in sight, in fact Dr. G. J. Sweetland's men might be ranked almost on a par with Oregon University and the Oregon "Aggies," although the latter team defeated the Salemites in a fierce 5—3 affray at Corvallis. In full-back McRae, Willamette has a star fully the equal of Niles in every department, save kicking.

ALL-CALIFORNIA ELEVEN.

Foot Ball in California

BY ALBERT G. WADDELL.

The California foot ball season of 1911 was marred by the interest in the English game of Rugby, and as a result the games were few, and the attendance naturally fell below the high water mark. It often happened that both forms of the pastime were staged in the same city on the same day and both games suffered.

A strange situation exists in this section of the coast. The influence of the large universities has caused many of the high schools to adopt the importation, and, strange to say, after a season or two of unpopularity, the game gets a footing with the entering classes and usually stays.

When the American game is played according to modern ideas, when every advantage is taken of the invitation to play an open game and the old line hammering tactics are forsaken, a combination of greater spectacular possibilities is found, coupled with a clearer intention not found in Rugby. The English game was introduced on the Pacific Coast at a time when the intercollegiate game was on the operating table and many followers entertained grave fears for its future.

Rugby was forced upon the undergraduates of the universities of California and Stanford. For several seasons it was unpopular, but time killed the opposition and the chances for foot ball, which had come back from the rules committee a new game, were greatly lessened.

Notwithstanding the unfortunate conditions, there is much interest in college foot ball in the State. The conference institutions opened the season of 1911 with a series of victories over the high schools and weaker colleges, which left the "Big Four"—Pomona, Occidental, Whittier and Redlands—in a class by themselves, and the fight for the championship followed. Redlands was weaker than usual and was defeated by the other colleges in good games. This team would have been more successful had the sterling booting of Bonnell been called more into play and had the line been coached to handle speed more than brawn.

Whittier, after winning from Redlands, fell into a mid-season slump, and injuries were largely responsible for her failure to hold her own in the final two games. Occidental played with flashes of brilliancy, and after winning the two preliminary games by good scores, went into the final contest with an even bet on the honors. All "dope" was upset, however. The wonderful interference of the Blue and White proved too much for Occidental's defense, and the result was a 42 to 0 score. Although one-sided, the game was intensely interesting. The spectator lost sight of Occidental's weakness in Pomona's great strength. Regardless of the fact that the game was Pomona's after a short period of play, the Black and Gold team fought with unabating fierceness.

"It was not that we had such a weak team," said Smart, the plucky Tiger captain, after the game, "but that Pomona had the most wonderful combination of speed, unity and foot ball brains ever seen on the Coast." That tells the story. The well earned title once more goes to the Claremont College, and we again hand Stanton the palm as a coach of exceptional ability.

The Occidental-Pomona game brought the season to an official close, but interest was held at a fever pitch until Christmas Day, when the strong Navy team from the fleet, then in San Diego Bay, went down before the Southern California Athletic Club eleven to the score of 31 to 0. Thirty-six hundred spectators adorned the bleachers at Bovard Field, and for a post-season contest, lacking the usual college spirit, the great enthusiasm was absolute proof of the popularity of foot ball.

The task of picking an All-State team presents more difficulty than ever before. Many men were so closely matched that it has been almost impossible to decide on those with the most points in their favor. But, after seeing all the games and the players under all conditions of attack and defense, I will hazard the following selection:

Bonnell of Redlands possesses all the qualifications for a star wing man as well as a fast back. He handles the forward pass in grand style, and in getting down under punts is second to none in this section. As a punter, he is also a valuable addition to any team. At left tackle, Landreth of Occidental had a thorough knowledge of the game, carried the ball well and showed great strength on defense, ending his foot ball career in fine style.

Henderson of Whittier gets the place next to center on his general merit. He was the only man to show in the Pomona game, and fought the fierce Stanton attack to a standstill. Gillette of Pomona had it on all other men playing his position. Active, aggressive and seemingly immune from injury, he is the choice for the center.

The right guard is a hard matter to solve, but Ash was the most prominent in the matter of experience. In the game every minute, and getting the jump on his opponent, he proved his right to the All-State claims by his speed. Kepner, another Pomona man, wins his place at tackle with ease. Head and shoulders above all others, this player is as good as gold to any coach. In Crawford, Bonnell had a fast running-mate. A hard and sure tackler, exceptionally fast, and a perfect marvel at gathering in a loose ball.

Seay of Occidental and Weight of Pomona put up a strong fight for the quarter-back honors, but the former gets the place on account of superior generalship. Several times during the big game, Weight was assisted by the backs in directing his plays, and the team seemed to doubt his judgment. Shutt of Pomona is the only man for the left back-field.

At full-back Lutz outshined his rivals by yards. A punter, open field runner and strong plunger, this youngster is an all-round foot ball star, to say nothing of his clever tactics in backing up the defense. The other member of the Pomona set to win a place, is Brooks at right half. All the wonders of foot ball are stored up in this fast back. Speed is there in great quantities, and a natural aptitude for the game. No close follower of the season's play will attempt to dispute Brooks' claim to the honors.

Foot Ball in Detroit

By W. R. STOCKING, JR.,
Coach Central High School of Detroit.

The popularity of foot ball has increased proportionately to the rapid growth of the city. In 1911 the attendance at the games was greater than ever before. More than 12,000 people witnessed the six home games of Central High School alone, while Eastern, Western, and Detroit University School always drew big crowds. The enthusiasm over the sport ran high and the cheering at the games was inspiring, especially at the annual Eastern-Western struggle. Also, the city newspapers were very loyal and devoted more space than ever before to the game.

At the beginning of 1911, Central, Eastern, and Western all appeared to have excellent material. D. U. S. had very poor prospects. Coach Frye, however, did wonders with these "poor prospects," but even then the team was not up to the standard of past years. Eastern had the heaviest team in several years, and, although defeating its greatest rival, Western, 8—0, in a bitter fight, Eastern was in turn crushed by Central, 38—0. Western had hard luck and lost a majority of games, nevertheless, the men were game to the core and played themselves to the limit in every contest.

The real "big noise" in local foot ball, both as to team and opponents, was Central High. This eleven played the modern game and won the undisputed title of state champions.

The season of 1912 promises better teams for all the city high schools, and the changes in the rules, which will help to produce more scoring, will make the game more popular than ever.

Foot Ball in St. Paul

BY JOHN L. JOHNSON.

The 1911 high school foot ball season was without a doubt the most successful ever exhibited in St. Paul, as every school was represented by a strong team. Mechanic Arts and Central, for many years the leaders in the gridiron sport, had strong elevens in the field, and the game between them, which was to have decided the city championship, resulted in a 0 to 0 tie.

The Mechanics played five games, two of which were with outside teams, and won all but the Central struggle. Central played seven games, winning four, losing one to the strong St. Cloud High School squad and tying with Mechanic Arts and South High of Minneapolis. Mechanics were the heaviest team in the city, with Central a close second. The former was coached by Roy Mordaunt and the latter was under the direction of Coach Van L. Ward.

Johnson, formerly the Cleveland High School, had its first foot ball team in 1910, which stopped playing after being defeated by large scores three times, but finished the 1911 season in third place. Johnson was coached by Ralph Cole.

Humboldt, several years ago one of the leading gridiron teams in the State, did not take up the game until Coach Rosse Patterson organized an eleven in 1911, which played a good game against heavier opponents. The men were the lightest in the city, but among the fastest. It was not until after a hard struggle that the Johnson High team defeated the Gold and Black eleven by a score of 5 to 3.

Only fair crowds attended the games last season and the class spirit ran low. The largest crowd that witnessed a contest attended the Central-Mechanic Arts battle, when over 2,000 persons were present.

As many good players were brought to the front during the season, the naming of an all-star squad is very difficult. The following is the Daily News' selection:

ALL-ST. PAUL ELEVEN.

Devinne (Mechanic Arts) and Tomasek (Central), ends.

Ellerbe (Mechanic Arts) and Warren (Central), tackles.

Anderson (Mechanic Arts) and Johnson (Mechanic Arts), guards.

Townsend (Central) and Culligan (Central), half-backs.

Stickney (Central), full-back.

Independent foot ball also took a spurt last season, and the champion Laurel team was defeated by the West Side Tigers, a new eleven. The Kents also made a good showing. The St. Thomas, Hamline, and Macalester elevens did well in the Minnesota Conference games.

Cook County High School All-Star Selection, 1911

BY KELLOGG M. PATTERSON.

Chicago High School foot ball teams, that took part in the Cook County High School League battles, wrote another page of history during the 1911 season that will probably stand as one of the greatest years in the annals of the organization. The steady progress of the teams of the last two or three years made it possible to achieve an unusually successful season. It was one of intensified activity and finally brought to an end with a brilliant victory in another intersectional battle.

To Oak Park went the honors of winning not only the league championship for a second time, but the additional credit of having defeated the St. John's Preparatory School team of Boston, Mass., in what was termed "the national interscholastic championship game." While it is unique to say that Oak Park is the national champion, there is hardly any doubt but what the Cook County leaders are in a better position to set up this claim than any other team. During the season of 1910 the Oak Parks scored triumphs over not only the best teams of the Middle West, but also made the longest trip ever taken by a high school or prep. team to the Pacific Coast, where the championship high school team of Oregon and the State champions of Washington were defeated by the Chicagoans. Following on the heels of its win over Hyde Park for the 1911 Cook County championship, the Oak Parkers sought battle with the best aggregation of the Atlantic Coast and the St. John's team of Boston was selected to represent the East. At Chicago, on December 2, the two teams fought as hard a battle as has been seen in the Middle West for a number of years. Notwithstanding the excellent fight put up by St. John's, the Chicago boys overwhelmed their Eastern rivals and the final score gave Oak Park the national championship by a score of 17 to 0.

It only remains to be pointed out that Oak Park teams of the last two years have been scored on but once in these intersectional games, the Washington High School of Portland being the only one to leave a mark, and that by the drop-kick route. Two other teams have scored on the Orange and Blue squad, Wendell Phillips and Lake Forest Academy being able to count touchdowns on flukes. But defeat has not been registered against the Oak Park aggregation in two years.

Coach Robert C. Zuppke of the Oak Park squad must be given the full amount of credit for his work and he undoubtedly stands as one of the best coaches in the Middle West. His ability to develop the open game was mainly responsible for the great showing made by his charges, and it can be said of his work that no college coach of any of the "Big Eight" Conference college teams has been able to accomplish what the Western suburban handler has been able to do with his high school squad. Even the correspondents of the Eastern papers, who followed with the St. John's team in the post-season battle, were willing to admit that neither Harvard, Yale, Princeton, nor any of the Eastern teams were able to adapt themselves to the open game as readily and with such brilliancy as the Cook County League champions.

Eastern foot ball critics were the "whoa-back," "gee-haw" and the so-called "flea-flicker" forward passes. Probably more comment has been made on these three plays by college coaches than any others ever developed by high school teams. Each is complete in its own way and yet similar in execution. All have at least three passes behind the line of scrimmage and in the case of the "flea-flicker" there are five passes. Regardless of the fact that some of the best coaches in and around Chicago attempted to stop these plays and devised special defenses to meet them, there was hardly a case on record where it was done with any great success. St. John's Prep. placed the clamp on the "whoa-back" pass, but not until Oak Park had used it for a touchdown and several long gains. The condition of the field made it hard to execute the "flea-flicker," but the "gee-haw" was worked without interruption from the St. John's men, who, try as they may, were unable to fathom its course.

Although it is customary to start a selection at a certain position, it is befitting that the best individual player who has won more praise and been of greatest service throughout the year, should be mentioned first, and to this end Paul Russell, right half of the Oak Park eleven, is given the highest honors of the year. Russell is unquestionably the greatest player that has been developed in the league since Eckersall and Steffen. His right to the position cannot be denied, and in his collegiate career he no doubt will rank with the stars of the country.

The selection of ends is made with John Barrett of Oak Park at right and Fred Pollard of Lane Tech at left. Barrett, while a new player, is quick at solving a play; he uses his wits and works accordingly, and always with a measure of the teachings of his coach. On the offense he is even quicker to accept the opportunities offered, and in the use of the forward pass has been a most valuable asset. As an all-round player he is considered a shade over either Gill of Oak Park, Alfred Vinnedge of Hyde Park, or John Mooney of Wendell Phillips—all good men.

Fred Pollard is not doubted as the candidate for the other end and his brilliant offensive work, which was one of the important features of the success of the Lane eleven throughout the season, is alone enough to secure the job. As an open field runner he is much like Russell and is one of the hardest men in the league to bring to the ground.

For the tackles, Roscoe Cotter of Oak Park is the first choice, while Henry Shank of Hyde Park is second in order. Cotter is in a class of his own. Aggressive and full of fight, he is continually upsetting the opposing line of offense from the center position, to which he shifts when not on the offensive. A deadly tackler, he causes havoc by his work, and countless times has thrown the opposing back-field men for big losses.

Shank is given the right tackle position on the strength of his work in the Wendell Phillips, University High and Lane Tech games, where he was a tower of strength both offensively and defensively. In the last two games he was shifted to the back-field, but nevertheless his strongest showing was at tackle. Norlin of Lane is another strong contender for the position. Kraus of Lane is another strong man at the tackle position on defense, although he figures at full in the offense. Smith of Hyde Park is a very eligible man, but lacking in a few points.

Of the guard positions, John Alberts of Wendell Phillips made his mark from the start and becomes a valuable man when shifted either to tackle or center. Pressnell, the Lane Tech center, is placed at left guard. In shifting Pressnell to guard and giving James Wanzer of Oak Park the center job, the strongest combination is secured. Both are fighters and are fairly evenly matched when opposing each other. Pressnell is a product of "Dusty" Parker, who has developed some of the most successful centers in the high schools during the last four years. In the selection of Cotter, who is most effective when shifted to center on defense, it is well to have another to play the tackle position, and Wanzer, being accustomed to working the shift, would leave the line in a settled condition.

For the quarter-back position it is easily agreed that Macomber will fill the breach in preference to Leslie Hart of Hyde Park, although the latter is an accomplished player. Macomber's individual work was almost faultless, and he is a worthy successor to Milton Ghee of the 1910 team. Macomber has the added advantage of weight, and being a fast runner and good dodger is equal to any quarter-back of the last five years. His ability to score by a drop or place-kick is another point in his favor, while he was the champion punter of the league, with Steinbrenner of Hyde Park a close second. Macomber in the selection of his attack shows excellent field generalship, and to him was trusted the headwork of the squad, including the success of the "whoa-back," "gee-haw" and "flea-flicker" passes.

For left half-back Walter McDonnell, leader and one of the main cogs of the Lane Tech team, is selected. He is one of the hard hitting half-backs that is so valuable in gaining when gains are most needed, and his weight and speed combination make it hard for the tackler to bring him down. His work on defense with Rice would make an ideal secondary line.

To the full-back position Captain Fred Rice of the Oak Park squad is placed, as he is without exception the king bee of line plungers and a most important factor in the secondary defense. To Rice is also given the additional honors of the leadership of the honor eleven.

It would be unworthy not to give mention to the work of Carolan, the Oak Park half-back, who gave a good account of himself through all the games played by the champions, and as a ground-gainer he is the find of the year. Only the experience of McDonnell overshadows his chances of a selection.

It is only right that Bachman of Englewood should be given some mention, but it would hardly be correct to consider him for a position owing to the fact that he played but three games during the year, and had it not been for that he no doubt would have made his mark. Agard of University High and his team-mate, Loomis, are also given honorable mention.

Foot Ball in the Rocky Mountain Region

BY PYKE JOHNSON, DENVER.

Generally speaking, the season of 1911 in Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Conference foot ball was not up to the mark established in previous years.

A variety of causes may be named, chief among them being the fact that light schedules were the rule, a departure from preceding seasons, when foot ball in the West had ranked well with the other sections of the country.

A forecast of 1912, however, is most promising. All of the collegiate managers have been active in arranging good schedules and the outlook is for the most prosperous as well as for the most pretentious season the Conference has ever had.

The Intercollegiate Conference awards no championship and its officials have at various times expressed a disapproval of any prize-giving, no matter of what nature. This sentiment is in line with the theory that collegiate athletics have a value per se which does not need any reward other than the athletic conflict.

Be that as it may, public sentiment is not slow to arrive at conclusions of its own and, judging the elevens of the Conference of 1911 on form, a careful analysis finds the University of Colorado topping the list, the University of Utah second, Colorado College and Denver about on a par, Mines fifth, and Colorado Agricultural College sixth.

Colorado is given first place because of an untarnished string of victories. The State eleven was not defeated once during the season. Picked from the largest varsity squad in the Conference, the athletes comprising it, while not as strong individually in some cases as the men of other colleges, as an eleven formed the smoothest, best-balanced, best-conditioned team that was put on the field during the season. It was the only eleven in the Conference whose goal line was uncrossed, and for all-round play, it was the best squad of the year. It was coached by F. G. Folsom of Dartmouth and Frank Castleman of Colgate.

Fred Bennion of Utah performed the unexpected at Salt Lake. He turned out a powerful, rangy squad of amazing speed and versatility. With few old men back, he whipped raw material into near-championship form, and the play of the Mormons throughout the season was uniformly good.

Hampered by a lack of knowledge of local conditions and by a poorer squad than Denver had for some years, Coach Tom Barry—ex-Wisconsin, ex-Brown—still managed to accomplish a good deal for the Ministers. The eleven lost but one Conference game throughout the season, while playing under adverse conditions. Barry disclosed a repertoire of powerful plays, which showed a technical knowledge of the game, and which enabled his men to make a much better showing than had been expected by many of their supporters.

Mines developed something of the Yale spirit. Buffeted around from the opening of the season, getting a miserable start, having stars injured, and with a lack of experienced material, the team gradually rounded into form under Coaches Ted Stuart (Michigan) and William Johnston (Colorado), and with a keen fighting spirit fought their way through a losing season, to show their best form in the concluding matches.

The play of the Tigers was erratic, but they closed at high water. Lack of spirit gave Coach Rothgeb (Illinois) many a bitter afternoon in early season, but with Conference play the men began to whip into shape. The team possessed some brilliant individual stars and probably the most advanced style open foot ball displayed in the West.

Of the Colorado Aggies it can only be said that athletics were at low ebb. Material was light and inexperienced and Tom Hughes (Oklahoma), a new man, was hard put to it from the start.

Perhaps the chief surprise of the year was the showing of Wyoming, coached by Harry Deane. Until 1911, games with the Cowboys had been considered chiefly in the nature of practice contests. Last fall Duane brought about a decided change in the attitude of the other colleges. With a nucleus of two or three stars he built up a strong defensive eleven, and with the most brilliant drop-kicker of the year, Burgess, for his offense, he uncovered an eleven that was not to be sneered at.

Because of its small registration, the university was unable to enter the Conference, probably will not be able to for two or three years; but, in the meantime, Wyoming is slowing forging ahead in athletics.

There was a surprising number of injuries during the year, that is, surprising for the Rocky Mountain Conference, which has been unusually fortunate in this respect in the past. Many of the stars on all elevens were injured in preliminary contests or practice before the season began and small squads at all of the schools, save Colorado, made these more serious handicaps than usual. No one of the injuries was fatal, or even serious, save that they incapacitated the men from periods ranging in length from two weeks to an entire season.

Athletically, 1912 promises better foot ball in the Conference than for several years past. All of the schools have good-sized squads of veterans returning and advance reports of new material are optimistic. The men will be needed in view of the heavier schedules which are contemplated.

The selection of an all-star eleven is a matter for argument at the best, but the writer has gone to more than usual trouble to make a fair choice by asking the opinions of the various coaches and in effect making the choice rather a consensus of opinion than that of an individual.

The following have been given place, judged on three points—defensive play, offensive play, and condition: Kemp (Colorado) and Schroeder (Denver), ends; Crouter (Colorado) and Black (Colorado College), guards; De Laittre (Mines) and Bowers (Colorado College), tackles; Witherow (Colorado College), center; back-field, Vandemoer (Colorado College), Koonsman (Denver), and Rich and McFadden (Colorado).

An analysis of the scores made by the various Rocky Mountain elevens during the season of 1911 affords opportunity for some interesting comparisons. Utah was the best scoring machine, with 194 points. Even eliminating the 97 to 0 score against the Montana Aggies, the Mormons remain the strongest. Curiously, the Aggies appear high in the list, although they did not make a single score against a Conference eleven. The reason lies in the huge score against Fort Russell.

Colorado University developed the strongest defense, as it was the only team of the six that did not have its goal crossed for a touch-down once during the season. It was worth notice that Mines scored only against one of the six Western teams—and that the Aggies—showing that while scores against them were not high, that the Miners' offense was not strong.

The largest of the Conference scores was that made by Utah against the Aggies, and the smallest the one between Colorado University and Colorado College.

Denver University played the most collegiate games of any of the Western teams, with eight games. Colorado College had the most notable contest of the year when it journeyed to Madison to meet the Wisconsin Badgers, members of the Big Eight.

Colorado University had the fewest games of the leading teams, while it is an interesting fact, passed over by many, that the Tigers did not meet the Aggies, due to the switch in schedule, which enabled them to make the Wisconsin trip.

Despite the new divisions which were added to the Colorado State Interscholastic Conference during the past year, there still remains considerable room for argument as to which eleven has the best right to the honor of State champions for 1911.

In the local Conference, North Denver was undisputed leader.. In the South, Lamar is given precedence.

Owing to the restrictions placed upon them by the local athletic boards, North cannot claim the State honor, as the team is not permitted to engage in championship battles with elevens outside of Denver.

But there are legitimate contenders for the honor with Lamar. One of them is Fort Morgan, which won from many of the strong teams in the Northern district, but which was outside the Conference; the other was Grand Junction, which belongs to the Western slope division, but which, on account of distance, was not able to get championship struggles with teams in the Northern part of the State.

Fort Morgan is trying to arrange for another division of the Conference, which would include Sterling, North Platte and other schools in the Eastern section. If this can be done, and it probably will, it would seem that the State would be fully covered by the Interscholastic Conference, and that hereafter it may be possible to arrange for final games without too great a lengthening of the schedules.

In the main, high school foot ball was at its best notch in 1911. The formation of Conference divisions has given the players something to work for, and in general the class of elevens which have appeared over the State is surprisingly strong. Lamar may be cited as an example, with a squad averaging nearly 170 pounds—better than some of the college elevens.

It remains only for the authorities to gradually perfect and centralize the organization, so that a strong code of eligibility rules may be formulated, which shall be uniform for all the schools in the State. In this relation, the suggestion that the Denver schools' rules be taken as standard by the different divisions might not come amiss.

College Notes

Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, College Station, Tex.—The team of 1911 was no doubt the best that the college ever put out. Owing to the fact that the hardest games came early in the season, the team was in splendid condition before a fourth of the contests had been played. It made an excellent record up to the time of meeting Texas University. The men entered this game full of confidence and with the odds three to one in their favor. They lost, however, through overconfidence.

Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.—The team early in the season gave promise of unusual strength. After one of the Texas trips, however, injuries and fever were disastrous to the 'varsity. In spite of this and with an eleven made up largely of substitutes, Georgia Tech. was defeated and the University of Georgia outplayed. Taking everything into consideration the season was successful.

Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa.—The 1911 season was successful, in that Allegheny closed with a strong claim to the Association championship, having won three of the four games played with Association teams. The greatest victory of the season was over West Virginia University. The men who played the strongest for Allegheny were Abbott, at full-back; Captain Hawk and Townsend, at ends, and C. Dotterer, left tackle. Lavelly, left half-back, put up a fine offensive game, and Miller, right half-back, who is the captain-elect for 1912, was one of the stars.

Alma (Mich.) College.—Alma had four men named in nearly every selection of the State M.I.A.A. team. While many considered the college as having an excellent eleven, as shown by some of the big scores the team is credited with, still the fortunes of foot ball were against the men when they played the championship game at Olivet, which they lost by 9 to 6. Alma has all except one of the team back for 1912.

Baker University, Baldwin, Kan.—Baker's team was very good, as the scores will indicate. Captain George Dalton's playing at half-back made him an All-State selection as did M. Capps, captain for 1912, at right end.

Baylor University, Waco, Tex.—Baylor's team for 1911 played under exceptionally bad conditions. It was the off year. Only two or three of the old men were back, and the material which reported was raw, composed chiefly of "prep." school products. Considering these things, the record was a good one. Opponents scored 53 points to Baylor's 40. The hardest fought games were with Louisiana and Southwestern University. On Thanksgiving Day, to the surprise of all foot ball enthusiasts of the South, Baylor scored eleven points against Texas A. and M., the strong team that defeated so many big southern colleges. These eleven points were more than the combined scores of all other elevens that opposed the A. and M. team. The season's stars were: Captain Little, at full-back; Henry, at center; Howell, at quarter-back, and Cooper, at tackle. Little and Henry were the All-State selections in their positions for the second time. Cooper, who is a strong defensive player, will captain the 1912 team.

Bellefonte (Pa.) Academy.—The academy team claims the scholastic championship of Western and Central Pennsylvania. Ten games were played, of which seven were won. Of the victories, only one team, Dickinson Seminary, scored any points. The worst defeat was at the hands of Mercersburg Academy, the score being 31—0.

Beloit (Wis.) College.—Leading players, Landing, Fullerton, Wolfe, Dahlgen and Tracy. Cornell game was the best. The score at the end of first half was: Cornell, 9; Beloit, 0. The Beloit team came back and tied the score in the last half. Beloit had five All-State men—those mentioned above.

MUSKOGEE (OKLA.) HIGH SCHOOL.

Bethany (W. Va.) College.—During the first part of the season the team was without a coach, but made rapid progress under the supervision of Captain Shuttlesworth, who played quarter-back and was not surpassed by any other man filling the same position. After two games had been played Coach Merrill was secured and did excellent work. Smith, full-back, was out of the game for several weeks with a crippled shoulder and this greatly weakened the team. His position was filled by Lloyd, a new man in school this year and one who promises to make a great foot ball player.

Brown University, Providence, R. I.—The season of 1911 started off with a long string of victories, including one over Pennsylvania by a score of 6—0. The following week, at Cambridge, found Harvard at the top of her season, in the opinion of followers of the Crimson, and Brown was defeated after a spectacular game, in which the open style of play was a feature. The defeat at Yale was a disappointment, but the team rallied in time to put up a strong game against Carlisle, which was rated as one of the best teams in the country. Captain Sprackling, as in 1910, showed himself a master of the game at quarter-back, although he did not receive such steady support as in the previous year. Ashbaugh, captain-elect for 1912, played a consistently strong game at right end. Coached again by E. N. Robinson, the Brown team was remarkably proficient in open play, but did not attempt the running game to any extent.

Buchtel College, Akron, Ohio.—With only five of the 1910 championship eleven as a nucleus, around which to build a winning team, not much headway was made until the season was half over. The team held Reserve to a scoreless tie, one week after the latter held the Navy to the same score. Only five points were made on Buchtel in the last four games, and it is the consensus of opinion of the students that the team was as strong as the one of 1910, which defeated Oberlin for the Ohio championship.

Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.—Topham, full-back, was one of the leading players in 1911. He was a star punter and consistent ground-gainer. Gdanic was another excellent ground-gainer. Dunkle, in the line, held like a wall. Jordan, on the end, was in front of every play that came his way. In fact, the whole team played hard, clean foot ball.

Carroll College, Waukesha, Wis.—Carroll was particularly unfortunate in the weather that prevailed in 1911. All of the big games were played on a wet or slippery field. The team was exceptionally light and fast, and a heavy field broke up their plays and spoiled the team work. The back-field averaged about 150 pounds. Mussehl and Stabler were the stars. In spite of the bad luck, Carroll finished in second place, tying Beloit. Prospects are quite bright for 1912, as most of the men will be back.

Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, Ohio.—Team ranked second in Ohio, being defeated by Oberlin by one point, an unknicked goal from touch-down.

Central College, Fayette, Mo.—The team, under the coaching of R. H. Kirk, at the end of three weeks' practice, was said by all to be one of the fastest in the State. It had the All-State back-field of the former season. The scores against opponents in the first two games showed the team's strength. But nearly every victory was costly. In the first game she lost Bland, the best half-back in the West. Hughes and Smith, the other half and full-back, respectively, were injured in the game with Rolla. They were never back in condition. Later in the season other men were injured, and the final game came with only five of Central's regulars in the line.

Central High School, Grand Rapids, Mich.—The school had one of the best foot ball seasons in years, being defeated only once. The next week after Detroit Central had defeated Muskegon, 5—0, on its own grounds, Muskegon tied that team, 6—6, on Muskegon's grounds, and the following week Central High defeated Muskegon, 6—0, showing that the three teams were very nearly equal, but with Detroit Central having a shade the best of it for first place in the State, with Grand Rapids second and Muskegon third. Detroit Central and Muskegon scored 8—0 and 6—0, respectively, on Ann Arbor, while Central High defeated Ann Arbor, 38—0. Other teams in the State with good records against minor teams were Bay City, Battle Creek, Jackson and Menominee.

POWELL COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL, DEER LODGE, MONT.

Christian Brothers College, St. Louis, Mo.—On March 1, 1912, the college faculty passed a resolution to resume playing foot ball, after having been without the game for five years.

Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.—The Colorado "Aggies" were at the foot of the ladder when the season closed, owing to the injury of several of the crack players at the beginning of the campaign. Dibelbliss and Richardson were the stars of the team.

Colorado School of Mines, Golden, Colo.—The "Miners" started the season with eight men who had never before played in a college game. The team developed wonderfully as the season progressed, and on Thanksgiving Day gave the University of Colorado, the undefeated champions, one of their hardest battles, the latter being able to score only one touchdown, due to a fumbled punt. Harper, quarter-back; Cadot, guard, and De Laittre, tackle, were chosen by the majority of the critics for the All-Colorado eleven. Losing only one man and with four other "M" men returning, the "Miners" should give an excellent account of themselves in 1912.

Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.—Under the combined tutelage of Reed and Sharpe, Cornell hopes to have a championship team in 1912. Steadiest players last season were: Captain Munk, Captain-elect Butler, Eyrich, J. S. Whyte, R. B. Whyte, O'Rourke, Williamson and Munns.

Creighton University, Omaha, Neb.—In view of the fact that the team was composed for the most part of new and inexperienced men, and that a very hard schedule was undertaken, Creighton University has reason to be satisfied with the result of the season of 1911. Coach Miller, realizing that his team was light, resorted to the open game and trick plays with such success that the final game, Thanksgiving Day, was described as "one of the best exhibitions of the clean, open game seen in the West."

Dakota Wesleyan University, Mitchell, S. Dak.—The Dakota Wesleyan team won the collegiate championship of South Dakota in 1911. Lost one game to Hamline (Minn.) University team, and lost another by a drop-kick to the State University. The line was heavy and back-field shifty.

Denison University, Granville, Ohio.—The team was very light, but fast. The men depended mostly upon speed and got away with it. The two games lost were decided on wet fields. At Delaware and Oberlin the team was too light to push through the mud. Rupp, right half, and Thompson, tackle, played the best game. Deeter played a heady game at quarter-back and is expected to make the All-State quarter in 1912. Ashley, at tackle, and Phelps, at half-back, will be heard from the coming fall. Instead of a tie the team would have defeated both Cincinnati and Case if there had been a place-kicker. In the two games Denison had thirteen attempts at goal and missed all of them.

DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind.—Leading players: Captain Mike Stansell, All-State tackle; Ole Walker, quarter-back; the best game of the season was with St. Louis, resulting in a tie; the M. A. C. contest was the best ever seen on DePauw's field.

Des Moines (Iowa) College.—Des Moines' best players were out of the game on account of injuries, and being a small college, there was not material at hand to adequately fill their positions.

Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.—In 1911 Dickinson had one of the best elevens it has had for years. With only a few old men back as a nucleus, a good team was developed under Coach Pautis. The principal games of the season were: Pennsylvania, Gettysburg and Lafayette. Among the leading players were: Ex-Captain Felton, Captain Beshove, Captain-elect Dunn, Goldstein, Scheaffer, Shearer and Brown.

Dickinson County (Kan.) High School.—High Schools in Central Kansas had unusually well trained, heavy teams during the season of 1911. Every team in this section had plenty of material and all were fortunate in having faculty members to coach the players. The only team to approach Dickinson's record was the fast Salina High School bunch, and they were defeated once by the hard fighting Junction City High School team, which was twice defeated by Dickinson. Salina was conceded to have a better team than Topeka or Emporia. The Salina-Dickinson game was cancelled by Salina authorities, and the proposed Dickinson-Topeka game could not be arranged because of conflicting dates.

Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa.—The team's offense in 1911 was built around Feike and Simons. The former, good at off-tackle plays, was injured in the Simpson contest. Simons, an open-field runner, forward passer and kicker, carried the brunt of the offense in the last two games. Reeves, guard, was the strongest lineman. The team lost the Ames and Kansas games by letting opponents recover on-side kicks.

Earlham College, Richmond, Ind.—At the close of the season the Earlham team was considered the best in Indiana, and the record was second only to that of Notre Dame. The team was the only one to score more than one touchdown on DePauw and the victories over Cincinnati and Butler were more decisive than those of any other institution in Indiana or Ohio. The back-field, composed of Reagan, quarter-back; Guyer, full-back, and Bogue and Brownell, half-backs, was exceptionally fast, and put up a whirlwind attack. Many coaches conceded it to be the strongest back-field on a college team in the West. The men were at their best in the contest against Butler. The teams entered the game evenly matched, but the fast pace set by the Quakers did not give their opponents a chance at the ball.

Emporia (Kan.) College.—In 1911 Emporia had the best team in the history of the college and was a strong contender for State championship honors with Fairmount College of Wichita, winning by one point a lucky victory. The team was light, speedy and had a large variety of plays. Earned distinction of playing a more open game than any other team in Kansas. A. A. Schabinger and Leroy Frazer were chosen as half-backs on the All-Kansas team. Schabinger was given the captaincy of the All-Kansas team.

Fairmount College, Wichita, Kan.—Although the Fairmount "Wheat Shockers" lost one battle of the season, that with the "Aggies" on a bad day in foreign territory, they were generally conceded the State championship, the "Aggies" having been defeated by several other teams. Three men were universally chosen for the All-Kansas team, namely: Captain Patton, quarter-back; Solter, left end, and Entz, right tackle. Solter won several games by place-kicking and was skillful with the forward pass. Patton was a great ground-gainer and general and won the last game from Ottawa by his first attempted drop-kick of the season. The team averaged 168 pounds, and was a strong defensive aggregation. Fairmount played the open game and Coach Thomas had his team well drilled in the new style of play.

Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa.—Team very light and lacked heavy line material; greatly handicapped by an epidemic of boils; principal game with Gettysburg, and series with that college now a tie; lose four men by graduation, but the nucleus for the next campaign is good.

Grinnell (Ia.) College.—Captain Sherman was a speedy, heady quarter-back; Sutherland a good forward passer and a consistent kicker, and Greenwood a tower of strength at right tackle. Macy, Larsen and Hudt were fast going down field under punts, and Eagan an aggressive player and excellent open-field runner.

Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.—Wendell did his usual good work in line-plunging; Huntington was valuable as defensive back; Smith excelled at end; Storer, a sophomore, showed up well at center, then tackle; Reynolds, also a sophomore, was a fast, heady half-back; Captain Fisher played a steady game at guard, as he always does.

Hastings (Neb.) College.—Hastings' prospects at the beginning of the 1911 season were the worst in its history. Only sixteen boys were in suits at any time and only four of these had played the college game before. The team, averaging less than 150 pounds, was outweighed by at least ten pounds to the man in every contest. Thorough knowledge of the rudiments of the game, coupled with a tricky style of attack, with the forward pass as a mainstay, were the features of Hastings' play. Contrary to early indications, the team developed rapidly and was tied with Wesleyan for the State championship when the two elevens met on November 16. Hastings was the aggressor in this game. The team carried the ball over the line for a touchdown and at least five other times pushed it within one and three yards of the opponent's goal only to lose it on downs. Wesleyan won on account of Hastings' errors, making one touchdown on a deflected kick, and another in the last three minutes of play on an intercepted forward pass.

Heidelberg University, Tiffin, Ohio.—Heidelberg started the season at Oberlin, where it was defeated. One week's hard drilling put the men in prime condition and they defeated Wooster, a Conference team. From that time on, however, two or three players were out of the game because of injuries, Captain Haulman, with a dislocated knee; Crobaugh, left half-back, with an injured leg, and Smith, right half-back, did not play for some time owing to a torn ligament. In the first half of the Wittenberg game Roth, quarter-back, had his arm broken and did not play again during the season. These accidents greatly handicapped the work of the team, as material was scarce.

Hendrix College, Conway, Ark.—The team of 1911 was the best ever turned out by Hendrix, every position being better filled than ever before, with the possible exception of guards. Stapler, Johnson and Charles were stars at half-back, tackle and quarter-back, respectively. Principal game was with Henderson, score 6 to 6. With this tie the State Athletic Association declared no championship for 1911.

Hillsdale (Mich.) College.—The work of the team in 1911 was the best ever seen in Hillsdale. Two men were picked on the All-M. I. A. A. team. The season was very successful. Only two men will be lost. Captain Stewart was considered the best tackle in the State and Harwood the best end.

Hiram (Ohio) College.—Had a successful year. T. H. Johnson's coaching was satisfactory. Captain Tolly, right end; Braun, half-back; Leitch, full-back, and Cook, right guard, were the leading players.

Hope College, Holland, Mich.—The poor showing made by the team was due to the lack of a coach. Plenty of good material, but no chance to bring it out. As it was the team put up a good exhibition against strong teams which had competent coaches.

Illinois College, Jacksonville, Ill.—Team was strong on defense, but weak on offense. Captain Noll, at right end, fourth year on team, was a most consistent player, being exceptionally strong on defense. Buchheit, at quarter-back, was a valuable man as punter, at forward passing and in generalship.

Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington, Ill.—The Illinois Wesleyan team of 1911 finished a difficult schedule with fair success. Three hard games were lost by close scores, with Northwestern, Lake Forest and Millikin. In the earlier part of the season a number of players received injuries that materially impaired the work of the squad in the closing games of the schedule. Fieker, at full-back, was the strongest offensive and defensive player. He was the unanimous choice of the critics for All-State minor college full-back. At tackles Heffernan and Butler excelled in defense, as did Redmon, at end. The team was well balanced, and while not a scoring aggregation, made a creditable showing.

Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa.—Played kicking and running game. Burge a good ground-gainer with low, spiral punt, very hard to handle. Rutledge, Chappell, Hurst, Harte and Weyrauch were the leading players.

Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan, Kan.—In contrast to previous seasons, only two old men reported for the team in 1911. While there was plenty of material at hand, it was green and undeveloped, therefore, the work of the season was largely constructive. The team showed lack of scoring ability the early part of the year, but at all times played a great defensive game. Coming strong at the end of the campaign and defeating Creighton, Arkansas, Oklahoma "Aggies" and Washburn, the season was a success. Probably the greatest feature was the unexpected showing against Kansas University and the victory over Arkansas University. Holmes, at left tackle, and Felps, at center, were in a class by themselves in this section. Howenstein's punting and drop-kicking won for him the admiration of all foot ball enthusiasts.

MUSKEGON (MICH.) HIGH SCHOOL.

Kemper Military School, Boonville, Mo.—Notwithstanding the fact that only one regular player of the previous year represented the school in the line-up for 1911, the team developed into one of the best in the history of the institution and could have made a creditable record even with a much harder schedule. The season was a short one, only six games being played. Only one game was lost and that by a 6—5 score. The team was fortunate in having an excellent pair of ends in Rockhold and Johnson. With the assistance of Boddy, the quarter-back, whose passing was accurate, their handling of the forward pass was the feature of the team's work. In all games this play was used to good advantage. The team was coached by J. F. Miller, formerly of Warrensburg Normal, and much credit is due him for results obtained with green material.

Kentucky State University, Lexington, Ky.—Although the material in 1911 was the best in years the team was the weakest that has been turned out at the university. A few years ago Sweetland of Cornell came to Kentucky and in two years placed the State University well to the front in foot ball in southern institutions, and defeated the University of Illinois. Yielding to the demands of the student body, Sweetland will have charge of the team in 1912. This means, it is claimed, that Kentucky State will have another team famous for its fighting qualities.

Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.—Irwin Barclay, center and captain in 1911, was mainly responsible for Knox winning the "Little Five" Conference championship, also championship of minor colleges in Illinois.

Lafayette College, Easton, Pa.—Marshall, Dannebauer, captain; Spiegel, Kelley, Wagonhurst and Brown were the most consistent players during the season of 1911. Marshall especially so, for he was conspicuous in every game.

Lake Forest (Ill.) College.—The 1911 team was characterized by an unusually light line. As a consequence, with the best college punter in the State, Smith, and the two fast ends, A. Dunsmore and Mather, the kicking game was used in fully half of the offensive work and won games. Captain West drew the quarter-back and captaincy positions on the All-Illinois State eleven, and three of his team-mates are also placed on this eleven—A. Dunsmore, end; McKee, tackle, and Smith, half-back.

Lehigh University, South Bethlehem, Pa.—Lehigh's foot ball season of 1911 was a big improvement over recent seasons. Although the Lafayette game was lost, 11—0, it was not won until the second half. Lehigh showed the best form in the Ursinus and Princeton games. The former was won, 6—0, and Princeton was held to a 6—6 score. The fact that Princeton defeated Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth and won the championship of the East gave to Lehigh an enviable position for the showing against the Tigers.

Lincoln (Ill.) College.—The team was weak at the first of the season, but made rapid progress and defeated Illinois Wesleyan, 6 to 0, in the last game of the year. McMurray, full-back, was the star and he made the All-State team.

Louisiana State Normal School, Natchitoches, La.—The players averaged only 139 pounds. They met the strongest teams within a radius of two hundred and fifty miles, but won only three games out of eight played.

Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La.—The team work was very successful, considering the fact that the great majority of the men were new. Walet, Dupont, left half-back, and Hall played an excellent game.

Marietta (Ohio) College.—Three men were injured in the Staats game, including captain. Two tackles were lost in the Otterbein contest and one in the Ohio University game. Leading players were: Drumm, captain and left tackle, and Sawtelle, full-back.

Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va.—Marshall enjoyed the best season in its history and outclassed all the opponents in new foot ball, with the possible exception of Marietta. Twenty-six out of thirty-one forward passes were successful in the West Virginia University game. Great credit is due Young, the fastest quarter-back in the South. The team was coached by

WAYNE (MICH.) HIGH SCHOOL.

Boyd Chambers of Denison. The Huntington Herald-Dispatch said of the men: "The machinery of the Marshall eleven is something to be wondered at; something to be admired. On the rarest of occasions did the 'play together' spirit break. The eleven fought as a single man, and as a giant."

Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy.—The season was the most successful Mercersburg ever had. No one man can be picked out as the star; the line never gave way and the secondary defense never failed; the ends always blocked and the backs advanced. Much credit is due to Coach Frank Sommer, University of Pennsylvania, 1911, and to Captain C. G. Schumens.

Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.—Miami's schedule was heavier than usual, but the boys fought hard. The team was unfortunate in having a number of bad accidents. Four of the best men were injured so that they were unable to play the remainder of the season. Of the best players, Baker was a star at half-back, while Harley, Engle and Hunsinger played well in the line.

Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, Mich.—Starting with only four veterans, one of the best elevens that ever represented M. A. C. was developed, and the season was closed by defeating Wabash. Michigan took the only game lost by M. A. C., by a small score. Bill, Riblet, Julian, Markham and Gifford bore the brunt of the season's work. "As game a team as I ever saw," was the statement of Fielding H. Yost, coach of the University of Michigan team.

Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College, Starkville, Miss.—This college was represented in 1911 by perhaps the best team in its history. The Auburn game was decided in October, before the players had reached their top form. The team was at its best against Louisiana and the University of Mississippi, its greatest rivals, and defeated both by a 6-0 score. The season reached its climax in the Thanksgiving Day game against Mississippi. This has been an annual event for many years, and an immense crowd saw the university colors go down in defeat. During the holidays the team made a trip to Cuba and defeated the Cuban Athletic Club of Havana, 12-0.

Mount Union College, Alliance, Ohio.—The team's playing last season proved it to be one of the strongest in Ohio. Reserve's fluky victory at the start was the only defeat suffered in the State. Half-back Whinney was generally chosen on All-State teams; likewise Carson and Blythe, ends. Gibson also deserved high praise for good work. The team showed its proficiency at the open game, and also that it could play the old game to equal advantage.

Nebraska Wesleyan University, University Place, Neb.—Team was green and worked into shape slowly. Hard fighters. Chamberlain, left half, a brilliant player, considered to be greatest in the State. McCandless, at the other half, strong on returning punts. Sandall, at left tackle, fine on breaking up plays, and always made a hole. Gournee, at left end, fastest man on team, and a sure, heady player. Wesleyan won intercollegiate State championship.

Northwestern College, Watertown, Wis.—Off to a bad start, Northwestern played its best game at the finish. A weak back-field was relieved by Wietzke's punting. In an exceptional line the work of Bruns, left end; Tacke, left tackle, and Haase, left guard, deserve especial mention.

Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.—The team averaged 161 pounds at the opening of the season and 165 pounds at the close. Outweighed eight to twenty pounds a man in the Conference games. Team aggressive. Lamke, at right half, and Grahn, at full-back, were exceptionally strong. With only two good subs, Northwestern was forced by injuries to shift the men a great deal in the last four games. The team was too light to stand the strain, but gained universal respect for its grit and knowledge of the game. Chicago was the big contest. It was the first time in eight years that Northwestern scored on that team.

DICKINSON COUNTY (KAN.) HIGH SCHOOL.

CANTON (KAN.) HIGH SCHOOL.

Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind.—By defeating Wabash, Notre Dame secured the championship of Indiana, as Wabash had previously defeated Purdue, the other contender for the title. Kelly, last year's captain, played a wonderful game at tackle, being recognized as among the best in the West. Crowley, at end; Feeney, at center; Donas, at quarter, and Rodcone, at end, were unusually fast. Notre Dame loses only two men from the entire squad in 1912, and the chances for another Western championship, as in 1909, are very bright.

Oberlin (Ohio) College.—Oberlin went through the season without a defeat by an Ohio college, and for the third successive season was awarded the Ohio championship by the press and coaches of the State. Captain McDaniels won the title of All-Ohio center. Stimson, half-back, and captain-elect for 1912, was always a star.

Ohio Northern University, Ada, Ohio.—Although the outlook was not very bright when the university opened in 1911, the campaign on the gridiron was conceded to be the most successful in the history of Ohio Northern. The team won five out of nine games, and scored 190 points to 111 for opponents. The crossing of Notre Dame's line in the first game and scoring 103 points against Muskingum College were the features of the season. Captain Peters' handling of the team and his brilliant play in the back-field aided materially in the eleven's success. Especial praise must be given to Gardner, who was universally agreed upon as the star player of the year.

Ohio University, Athens, Ohio.—The record made last season, though not exceptional, was a great improvement over the previous year, when the team did not score a point all season. Four games were won, three lost and one was a tie. Ohio University defeated Marietta for the first time since 1897.

Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio.—The university eleven closed the season of 1911 by decisively defeating the strong Denison team, 17 to 0. The campaign was the most successful, financially, in the history of the university, although the results of a couple of the contests were disappointing. The game with Ohio State was hard fought, and State was lucky to win, 3 to 0, by a drop-kick from the forty-yard line. The team was largely composed of veterans, four of whom, Captain Thomssen, Littick, Shepherd and Hutchison, were practically unanimous choices for the All-Ohio eleven.

Otterbein University, Westerville, Ohio.—Leading players were; C. F. Sanders, quarter-back, who scored half the points made during the season, and who won the last three games by place-kicks, and J. L. Snively and L. E. Gilbert, half-backs, who were the largest ground-gainers. R. H. Simon, center, was chosen by some experts as their choice for All-State center.

Quachita College, Arkadelphia, Ark.—Quachita was exceptionally weak, due to too many new men and injuries at the first part of the season.

Parkersburg (W. Va.) High School.—The team annexed the undisputed title of State championship during the season of 1911. The eleven completed its schedule of ten games, defeating every opponent by decisive scores. Only once during the season was Parkersburg's goal line crossed. The strongest contenders for championship honors from each section of the State were defeated by the High School team, as well as two claimants of the Ohio State championship.

Parsons College, Fairfield, Iowa.—The team played through the season without serious injuries. The game with Drake University was the most important, but Parsons was easily defeated. The Fairfield team, however, did not let its greatest rival, Iowa Wesleyan, get away with the trick, Parsons winning by 17 to 12.

Penn College, Oskaloosa, Iowa.—The season was one of the most successful Penn has had for several years. During a short time in the middle of the season several of the best men were out of the game, which kept the team from being at its best. The players got back into shape, however, and won the last two games. Mattison, at tackle, and Smith, at half-back, played finely, while Williams, at end, did some of the best drop-kicking ever accomplished by a Penn man.

Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa.—The 1911 season as a whole could not be considered successful, but at times the team showed great capabilities. The material which seemed so promising in the beginning of the season did not develop as was expected. Beidleman, Lawyer, Brumbaugh, Bugle and Dayhoff were the mainstays of the team.

Pennsylvania State College, State College, Pa.—Penn State's team had the most successful season of any that has ever been turned out at the institution. In defeating the University of Pennsylvania it accomplished something that has been the aim of the teams since the beginning of foot ball at the college. The team work was the feature, there being no particular star.

Pomona College, Claremont, Cal.—Pomona College had one of the strongest teams in its history during 1911. Captain Shutt, at left half-back, not only did aggressive playing, but showed marked ability in the supervision of the team. Lutz, at full-back, played a fearless, smashing game. His booting was exceptionally good. During the Conference games his punts averaged 48.6 yards. Brooks, right half-back, played a good game both on the offense and defense. He did not have an equal at intercepting forward passes. A large squad contributed materially to the success of the season. During the Whittier College game, with both the halves and the quarter-back removed during the first quarter, the second line of backs continued the scoring until 44 points were piled up.

Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind.—Team changed at the latter part of the season of 1911. Against Indiana, Purdue played spectacular ball. New line-up: Oliphant and Tavey, half-backs; Hutchinson, quarter-back; Glossup, center, and all showed up well. Winston was a good tackle. Defeated Indiana, 12—5, after Indiana had scored in first two minutes. Purdue never used same play twice and played straight foot ball only three times. Coach Horr won a reputation in this game. Illinois and Chicago games were interesting exhibitions.

Shurtleff College, Alton, Ill.—A green team; only three old players in the line-up. Minor accidents forced the college to use twenty-three players on the first team, which spoiled the work, but many players were trained up for 1912.

Southern University, Greensboro, Ala.—Spring Hill game was the only one Southern University won, although the players put up gritty fights. Locke, right end, and Rush on the defensive quarter and offensive half, were stars. Allen, at full-back, played brilliantly at times.

Southwestern College, Winfield, Kan.—With a team averaging 152 pounds, won six games out of nine. Lindley, Bacon and Nichols were the three leading players.

Southwestern Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn.—Last year's team was the poorest in years. Two McLaurin brothers and J. C. James played finely all season.

Spring Hill College, Mobile, Ala.—Spring Hill presented a strong, fast team, and prospects at the opening of the season were bright. Team was unfortunate, however. It outplayed Marion, but lost the game out of sheer bad luck. Southern University won, only by Spring Hill's failure to kick goal. Coach Maxon used shift plays and passes with great success. Prospects for 1912 are for a lighter team.

St. Joseph's College, Dubuque, Iowa.—The team of 1911 was the lightest that St. Joseph's has had in years, yet, considering the strength of the opposing players, the work was commendable. Tiernan, who will captain the team in 1912, was mentioned by many sporting editors as All-State end. Florencourt, at center, and O'Brien, at full-back, worked consistently all season. The principal game was against Morningside, in which St. Joseph's men were outweighed about eighteen pounds to the man. Notwithstanding this handicap, however, the Dubuque men held their opponents for three quarters without a score. In the fourth quarter darkness assisted Morningside to pull off a forward pass, which resulted in a touchdown. By agreement the game was then called.

St. Louis (Mo.) University.—The team improved in speed, strength and finish as the season advanced. The Illinois game was a splendid contest and was the only defeat for St. Louis. This resulted in a misjudged punt in the face of a high wind. Illinois regained the ball near St. Louis' goal and made a touchdown. Later, a field goal was added. The DePauw game unfortunately was played on a soaked field and during a drenching rain. Rolla and the Haskell Indians proved greatly improved teams. The meeting with Missouri University was a hard fought contest, but the St. Louis players outclassed their opponents by reason of the general condition of the players. The greatest of all the games of the year, however, was played on Thanksgiving Day with Syracuse. It was a quick, scientific and spectacular contest. The result placed St. Louis among formidable rivals of Conference teams in the West. Maguire, Highty and Zachortz were particular stars.

St. Mary's College, Dayton, Ohio.—St. Mary's had light, fast players. The line averaged 140 pounds and the back field but 135 pounds. Nevertheless, they tackled some of the heaviest teams in Southern Ohio and acquitted themselves creditably. Otterbein and Earlham outweighed St. Mary's twenty-five pounds to the man. The low score to which they held the powerful Otterbein backs won for them the praise of Otterbein's coach, Exendine, the old Carlisle star, who pronounced them the greatest little team in Ohio. Graduation robs St. Mary's of several bright stars in 1912. Captain Welch goes to Cincinnati University; Werder, center, to Carnegie Tech.; Seidensticker, left end, to O. S. U., and Quinlan to Notre Dame, where he should prove a sensation. However, in Captain Schumacher, Mahrt, quarterback, and Sacksteder, right half, St. Mary's has the greatest three players ever developed at the college, and with these as a nucleus the new coach should have no difficulty in developing a winning team.

Swarthmore (Pa.) College.—The season of 1911 was started with six new men, three of whom had never before played foot ball. Coach Brooke developed a powerful machine before the campaign was over, and although the team lost to Lafayette, the season as a whole was one of the most successful in recent years. Captain Gieg, who was re-elected for 1912, was the shining star, and his forward passing was a big factor in the team's success. Not a man from last year's team graduates.

Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, Tex.—Texas Christian University was the only institution of high rank in Texas not supporting a training camp during the season of 1911. The team began work one month after most of the schools had teams in the field, hence its poor showing in early games. But two 'varsity men were returned from 1910, so the material was mostly green. The prospects for 1912 are very bright. Eight 'varsity men will return. H. W. Lever of Ohio will again coach the team.

Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky.—The leading players were: W. Spink, full-back; Hunter, right half-back; Thomas, center; Lobrock, left half-back; Maiden, right guard, and G. Tinsley, right end.

Tulane University, New Orleans, La.—Tulane made great improvement in foot ball over previous seasons, due to better material, and having an athletic director on hand who was familiar with the conditions. Greater enthusiasm was shown than for many years, and the renewal of relations with Louisiana State was the beginning of a new era in athletics for both institutions.

University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Light team, averaging 155 pounds a man, but fast. Excellent physical condition all season. Few injuries. Georgia Tech., Mississippi A. and M. and Tulane best games from the Alabama standpoint. Lack of punter a handicap. H. Vande Graaff, end, and A. Vande Graaff, full-back, were the most consistent players. Captain Bumgardner, end, and Countess, tackle, were also good. Team was outweighed in every game except Marion.

University of Arizona.—The only score made against the team in 1911 was on a field goal by the New Mexico Agricultural College. The newspapers of New Mexico and Arizona awarded Arizona the southwestern championship.

GRAND PRAIRIE SEMINARY, ONARGA, ILL.

University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, Ark.—Injuries in second and third games to two or three stars upset the team. Quarter-back of practically no use after first two games. Hinton, tackle, starred throughout the season. Texas game lost through Kirkpatrick's great punting. Washington game clean and hard fought on a muddy field. Louisiana contest best of the season.

University of Chattanooga, Chattanooga, Tenn.—Chattanooga started in 1911 with no schedule and not very good prospects for a team. Only five men were out and they did not have any experience. Coach Stauffer slowly worked the squad to efficiency and some small games were played. At the end of the season the team had just begun to play real foot ball. In 1912 all of the old men will be back, and a strong schedule has been arranged. Some good "prep" material is expected and a good season looked for.

University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.—Chicago played great foot ball against Illinois, Cornell and Wisconsin. Scruby showed himself to be a powerful punter and place-kicker. Norgren and Sauer were the best half-backs in the West. Kasulker was a strong end and Captain Rademacher a good tackle.

University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio.—The strongest teams met by Cincinnati in 1911 were Otterbein, Kentucky State, Denison, Miami University and Ohio State. The Kentucky State game was probably the most spectacular, as Cincinnati won in the last ten minutes of play on an intercepted forward pass. The Ohio State tussle was the most important one. It was played on Thanksgiving Day. By many it was looked upon as the championship game of the Ohio Conference.

University of Colorado, Boulder, Colo.—Championship team of Rocky Mountain region; splendid work done by Captain McFadden; hardest game with Colorado College.

University of Idaho, Moscow, Idaho.—With a comparatively new bunch of players, Idaho managed to keep out of the Conference "cellar." The playing features of the year were Captain Hillman's line-bucking and Perkins' open field running.

University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.—The most brilliant work of the year was shown in the Minnesota struggle. The Indiana game was hotly contested. Captain-elect Woolston played a well balanced game all season. Dillon performed finely, and Springy was again a star. Merriman, at quarter-back played a heady game, and Davis was steady at center.

University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa.—Iowa had a strong line, but a weak back-field, and so was forced to play a defensive game almost entirely. Prospects for 1912 are much better than for some time past. The 1911 freshmen team was very strong and will undoubtedly supply many good men for the next 'varsity. Players prominent last season were: O'Brien, center; Hanson, guard; Murphy, full-back and captain; Trickey, guard, and Alexander, tackle.

University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.—Notwithstanding the unprecedented number of injuries suffered by members of the team, resulting in keeping three star players out of at least two important games of the year, the season was not without success. The team was without the services of either Craig or McMillan during all of the Cornell game, and both Thomson and Pontius were early incapacitated. The Pennsylvania game was without question the best of the season. It was played in a raging snowstorm, but in spite of the cold the game was marked by some splendid playing. The kicking of Meek of Michigan, the drop-kick from the thirty-five-yard line against the wind by Marshall of Pennsylvania, the end running of Mercer of Pennsylvania, and the all-around work of Craig and McMillan deserve special notice.

University of Mississippi, Oxford, Miss.—Adams, Barker, Walton, Cahall, Shields, Mitchell and Randolph all played good foot ball; the first three did especially well, Barker and Walton receiving the honor of being selected several times for the All-Southern team.

SULLIVAN (ILL.) HIGH SCHOOL.

University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.—The team lost its captain, Hackney, quarter-back and a wonderful kicker, through a broken shoulder in the second game, putting him out for the season. The team went poorly for a few weeks then, but came back strong during the last weeks. The team was light, and had no pronounced star after losing Hackney. During the last three weeks the men played fine foot ball. Mention might be made of the annual Kansas-Missouri game. It was the twenty-first annual meeting between the two institutions and has become to be known very widely. In 1910, in Kansas City, the receipts were $34,000, the largest for any game ever played in this part of the country, if not anywhere in the West. In 1911 the game was played in Columbia, on Missouri's field, for the first time.

University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb.—Made the high score of the season, 117—0, against Kearney Normal. The Minnesota game was no indication of the comparative strength of the two teams. Nebraska actually gained more ground than did Minnesota. Nebraska was in excellent physical condition the day of the Michigan-Nebraska game and beyond doubt outplayed Michigan, but the score was a tie. This last game was the biggest ever played in Lincoln. Leading players: Channer, left end; Shonka, left tackle; Elliott, center; O. Frank, left half-back; Potter and Warner, quarter-backs; R. Frank, right half-back.

University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N. D.—Gullickson, right half-back; Hemp, left half-back, and McKnight, right tackle, made All-State team. North Dakota was defeated by both Carleton and Hamline, but won from Macalester. The latter, later, defeated both Carleton and Hamline. The last game scheduled with North Dakota Agricultural College was cancelled on account of snow.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore.—Won against Whitman College, Washington State College, and lost to Multnomah Club and University of Washington. Largest crowd in history of Northwest was present to see Oregon and Washington game at Portland on November 19. At least ten thousand persons were present.

University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa.—The bright stars of the team were Wagner, left end, whose work was phenomenal all season; Galvin, center, who also did the punting, and the wonderful line plunging of Brown, at half-back, whose defensive work was consistent and his tackling sure. The championship of Western Pennsylvania was won for the third time by the defeat of W. and J. The State game was lost by a field goal, Pittsburgh otherwise outplaying the opposing team.

University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.—Team went all the way to Austin, Tex., and to New Orleans, playing two games in three days. They won both against much heavier elevens.

University of South Dakota, Vermillion, S. D.—Leading players in 1911: Inlay, full-back; Thackaberry, left half-back, and Sheeks, right half-back; P. Coffey, quarter-back, and C. Coffey, left end. The playing of the team throughout the season was consistently good, and the scores of the Minnesota and Denver games represent the strength of the team. Open play and cross-backs were used mostly. The speed of the back-field made those plays dangerous to almost any opponent.

University of Texas, Austin, Tex.—The foot ball authorities at the university consider the season of 1911 as the most successful in the history of the institution from many standpoints. The hardest game was with the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas. That team averaged around 190 pounds, and, except for U. of T.'s victory, was undefeated. Sewanee won on a fluke. Oklahoma outclassed us and was one of the best teams, all-around, we played. Arnold Kirkpatrick was a star half-back and punter. Nelson Pueth, quarter and half-back, deserves special mention. He was picked as the All-Southwestern and All-State quarter. Bland, the 6-foot 3-inch center, also deserves notice, as well as Frost Woodhull, the 1912 captain and right end, and Perry, left end. Others who did commendable work were Jerardan and Harold, both guards, and Murry and Captain Ramsdell, brother to Fred Ramsdell of Pennsylvania track fame, at tackles. Dave W.

HUMBOLDT HIGH SCHOOL, ST. PAUL, MINN.

Alderdice, who succeeded W. S. Wasmund as coach, won a place in the heart of every Texan. He was captain and half-back at Michigan in 1907, 1908 and 1909. He returns in 1912. Our biggest game so far scheduled is with the University of Indiana.

University of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah.—With only three veterans and lightest team in the Rocky Mountain Conference, with the exception of the Colorado "Aggies," Utah's showing in 1911 was remarkable. A well balanced defense and an aggressive, varied attack made the team formidable. Captain Romney was the best half-back in the Conference, and Oleson made the All-Rocky Mountain team, while Gardner, Fitzpatrick, Bennion, Wimmer, Peterson, Dilman, Sutherland and Ashton all deserve honorable mention.

University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.—The season was the best the university had in foot ball for many years, owing to good material, efficient coaching and general interest. The preliminary games were all won by large scores. Minnesota contest resulted in a tie score and an intensely exciting game on a frozen field. The last game with Chicago was lost mainly through overconfidence of the men. Prospects are excellent for another good team in 1912.

University of Wyoming, Laramie, Wyo.—With less than fifteen men to pick from, and averaging only 153 pounds, the Wyoming team made even greater strides in 1911 than in the previous year, winning more games than ever before, and surprising the heavy teams of the Rocky Mountain region. Captain Fuller, at left end, played steady, consistent foot ball. Quarter-back Burgess presented his usual snappy game and astonished everyone by his kicking, running and dodging. Neil Rogers, at center, and Excelby, at left half, also did fine work. The showing made by the team was nothing less than remarkable, and the molding of such raw and scant material into a well organized machine places Coach Dean in the front rank as a foot ball tutor. Burgess was named as All-Rocky Mountain quarter-back.

United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.—Throughout the season the team worked consistently, but at great disadvantage, owing to lack of a good kicker. Toward the finish, however, Keyes showed marked ability as a kicker, but too late to be of much service. Hyatt, Cook, Gillespie, Hoge, Arnold and Devore were the leading players.

Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.—By winning all its southern games, Vanderbilt's team had a clear claim to the southern championship. The following men should be placed on the All-Southern eleven of 1911: R. Morrison, quarter-back and captain; Hardage, left half-back and captain for 1912; Freeland, right tackle; Whitzyger, left tackle; Morgan, center, and J. O. Bomar, Jr., guard.

Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind.—Leading players were: Lambert, quarter-back; Elliot, captain and guard; Ebert, guard; Cravers, center; Hopkins, tackle, and Howard, end. Lambert was the star. His drop-kicking was fine, getting one in the Purdue, Rose Poly, Marquette and Notre Dame games. Notre Dame did not score until the last five minutes of play. Their backs outweighed those of Wabash thirty pounds to the man and the line thirteen pounds to the man. It was the fifth straight victory over Purdue in foot ball. All except two men will be back in 1912.

Washburn College, Topeka, Kan.—Season started with raw material; team light, averaging 156 pounds. Fundamentals were drilled into the men without thought of result of first games. At the end of the season team played a good brand of foot ball. Rogers, guard; Bishop, tackle, and Smiley, quarter, were the strongest players. Important games, Kansas and Kansas "Aggies."

Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.—Team's work on the whole was good. Line weak in spots, though it showed great strength in the Indiana game. Leading players: Nipher, All-Missouri Valley half-back; Falvey, quarter-back; McCarthy, center, and Perrings, left end. Held Arkansas, a team that outweighed Washington fifteen pounds to the man, to a 3-0 score; ball was on Arkansas' three-yard line when game ended.

HIGH SCHOOL OF COMMERCE, CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Western Military Academy, Upper Alton, Ill.—The usual difficulty was encountered at the academy in booking enough games to keep the first and second teams in condition during the campaign of 1911, but in spite of this the season was successful. The old men on the team were Torres, Reed and Eyermann, Torres being the most reliable player of the squad. Captain Eyermann played finely at tackle. He was the hardest man on the team to stop.

West Virginia University, Morgantown, W. Va.—Best team in West Virginia's history; won its important game with W. and J., but after this the team slumped. Bachman played a brilliant game against W. and J. Lieut. Nelly, an old student, came back and did great service in putting the team in shape and adding confidence. The squad went through the season in perfect physical condition, without an injury, which was due to the careful training of Director Chez, to whom must be given the credit for the brilliant campaign.

Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash.—Whitman was outwelled, but played a fast, snappy game. In both the University of Oregon and Oregon Agricultural College contests the result was in doubt until the last few minutes. In the games with the University of Idaho and Washington State College, Whitman was handicapped by having its half-back and punter injured. Probably the most prominent in the team was Royal Niles, captain-elect for 1912, who was chosen All-Northwest full-back by all authorities. He was also recognized as the peer of all the punters in the Northwest. Others who showed up strong were Clarence Clemans and William Neill, both tackles. Clark Elmer, a freshman playing end, was exceptionally clever.

Willamette University, Salem, Ore.—The team had another successful season. Handicapped by the loss of many veterans, the team was new and started slowly. Minus the regular quarter, the men met the heavy Oregon Agricultural College eleven on the latter's grounds, late in November, and lost a 5-3 game when O. A. C. recovered their own fumble, running twenty yards for a touchdown. On Thanksgiving Day, Willamette defeated its old-time rival, the University of Puget Sound, 39-0, Puget Sound boasting of the best team in its history. Willamette used in this game an entire substitute eleven in the second half. The team was light and relied almost entirely on open foot ball. Forward passing and trick plays were used with great success. Francis, at end; Bellinger, at guard; McKae, at full-back; Blackwell, at center, and Homan, at quarter, played stellar foot ball. As Willamette has a new athletic field and splendid college spirit, a creditable team should be turned out in 1912, although it must be made up mostly of new material.

William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo.—William Jewell has played nine tie games in the last two seasons, which is half of the games in which the college has been represented.

William and Vashti College, Alledo, Ill.—William and Vashti College started the season of 1911 with a team two-thirds new. The backs, for the most part, were veterans, and they proved to be one of the strongest of back-fields, Clark and McCleary especially proving good ground-gainers. The team showed steady improvement throughout the season and at the close was one of the most aggressive fighting machines in the State.

Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio.—Team in 1911 finished the season without a serious accident, and with one exception played all close games. This was the first year under graduate system of coaching, and results were splendid in every way.

Yale University, New Haven, Conn.—Fast team; hampered in big games by wet fields; A. Howe, All-America quarter-back; Bomeisler, All-America end, and Ketcham, center, were the stars.

Foot Ball in Central California

By C. A. GOSHEN.

Since the universities have taken up Rugby there has been a gradual dwindling from the old game in Central California. High schools and prep colleges have been won over, one by one, inasmuch as students who eventually planned upon entering the universities realized that their future foot ball development would be solely along Rugby lines. The past record of some of the teams was none too good, and they probably thought that a change of game would bring a change of luck. The change in some instances was brought about more slowly than was anticipated by Rugby exponents.

At present there are practically no players of the old game in the universities. In the past, when the intercollegiate game enjoyed its greatest popularity, the two leading club teams of San Francisco, Reliance and Olympic, were made up largely of Eastern men. The present-day teams, not including the Navy teams, have no Eastern players at all. This lack of interest and co-operation on the part of Eastern resident players certainly works considerable harm and creates additional obstacles to overcome.

Up to the last season, the "Winged V" team of Vallejo has been the mainstay of the old game. In six continuous years of playing they suffered one defeat and earned 54 victories. This team did not organize for the 1911-12 season.

The Maryland and South Dakota Navy teams, the Original Century, Centurys of 1911, Brooklyn, Yosemite and Telegraph Juniors, five different club teams, enjoyed good records. The Maryland team were the champions of the Pacific Fleet for two successive seasons. Their love for the game, together with their weight and speed, accounted for their brilliant record. Just as the season was well under way the vessel departed for target practice and, as a result of this, they lost the opportunity of winning the Coast championship. This season they propose to challenge the best team in the Atlantic fleet, the games to be played in Denver or Chicago.

The Original Century team of Oakland had the best record for any club team. The players of this team are big powerful men, but slow. A series of three games was played with the Brooklyn team of San Francisco. The latter team was light and fast, and was outweighed by the Century team twenty pounds to the man. One of the games resulted in a tie score; the other two games were won by the Century team.

The South Dakota team started with a likely squad. When the season was well under way seven men were lost to the team, their service time having expired; however, they held the Brooklyn to a 0 to 0 score.

The Telegraph Juniors of Vallejo deserve special mention. The average team weight was 140 pounds per man.

There were approximately 150 games played in Central California during the past season. This includes all games of major and minor teams.

The ranking of the first five teams in Central California was an easy problem for the season of 1911.

The Marylanders won first place, not only by their superior team work, but individually, had an All Coast team been chosen, six of the positions would have been filled by the ship's crew. The Century team would have been a real contender for first place, but they only played three games during the season.

The Brooklyns played more games during the season than any other team. Their several victories, three ties and two defeats places them third. The cruiser South Dakota follows, a close fourth.

The "Centurys of 1911," a secession from the original Century and Yosemite players, rank fifth.

WE GUARANTEE every J5 Spalding Foot Ball to be perfect in material and workmanship and correct in shape and size when inspected at our factory. If any defect is discovered during the first game in which it is used, or during the first day's practice use, and if returned at once, we will replace same under this guarantee. We do not guarantee against ordinary wear nor against defect in shape or size that is not discovered immediately after the first day's use. ¶ Owing to the superb quality of every Spalding Foot Ball, our customers have grown to expect a season's use of one ball, and at times make unreasonable claims under our guarantee which we will not allow.

Course in Foot Ball } $2.50 FOR PLAYERS AND COACHES }

Glenn S. Warner takes this opportunity to announce to foot ball men that his "Course in Foot Ball for Players and Coaches," which he has been publishing in a series of pamphlets for the past four seasons, at $10.00, has proven so universally satisfactory and the demand has increased so greatly that he will revise the course in accordance with the new rules and publish it in book form.

PARKE H. DAVIS, a member of the Foot Ball Rules Committee, a former Princeton player, for many years a prominent coach and now an acknowledged leading foot ball critic, who has recently published an exhaustive history of foot ball, has expressed himself as follows regarding Mr. Warner's foot ball treatise:

"During the season of 1911 I made a critical study of the offensive and defensive tactics of the leading foot ball teams of the East. At its conclusion my opinion was that the tactical system of the Carlisle Indian team was without any doubt the most ingenious and effective system of all. Prompted thereby I have recently made a study of the "Course in Foot Ball for Players and Coaches," written by Glenn S. Warner, the Coach of the Carlisle team. This also is far and away the most advanced and scientific presentation of expert foot ball play in existence. Mr. Warner's course consists of twenty pamphlets, copiously illustrated with diagrams, drawings and photographs of players in action, exhaustive and complete, and covering every department of individual and team play.

There are diagrams and explanations of over eighty of the best plays which can be devised and which were demonstrated to be so effective by the Indians during the past season. This course represents Mr. Warner's study and experience of twenty years, and places before every foot ball man, from the beginner upon the school team to the finished University coach, the complete lore and technique of the game as it is known and taught by Mr. Warner, one of its greatest masters.

To the player it will give a complete insight into the best methods of playing his position; to the captain it will give thorough instructions for becoming a gridiron general, and to any coach in the country it will afford a vast mass of new and effective ideas upon every phase of the game.

For such a complete expert work its price of $10.00 is merely nominal, and if the course is revised in accordance with the 1912 rules and published in book form at $2.50 (as I understand Mr. Warner proposes to do), no player or coach can afford to be without a copy."

The book will be ready for distribution August 15th, and will be sent post-paid upon receipt of price, $2.50.

All orders or requests for further particulars should be sent to

GLENN S. WARNER,
Athletic Director, Indian School, Carlisle, Pa.

Mr. Walter Camp has endorsed and complimented Mr. Warner's former foot ball courses and there has not been a single dissatisfied subscriber since the course was first put out, while a great many have voluntarily written testimonials regarding its value, of which the following, from a prominent athletic director, is a fair sample:

DEAR SIR: Your foot ball course reached me in due time. I have found it most interesting reading. It hits the mark, for it is intelligible and systematic. I have had the opportunity of observing coaches at work on our field and find in your manuals more than the combined wisdom of them all. You have eliminated the non-essential. You proceed by the simple and direct method, which shows that you know how to teach, and the results you have obtained in past years are the inevitable results of methods of this kind.

Standard Policy

A Standard Quality must be inseparably linked to a Standard Policy. Without a definite and Standard Mercantile Policy, it is impossible for a Manufacturer to long maintain a Standard Quality.

To market his goods through a jobber, a manufacturer must provide a profit for the jobber as well as for the retail dealer. To meet these conditions of Dual Profits, the manufacturer is obliged to set a proportionately high list price on his goods to the consumer.

To enable the glib salesman, when booking his orders, to figure out attractive profits to both the jobber and retailer, these high list prices are absolutely essential; but their real purpose will have been served when the manufacturer has secured his order from the jobber, and the jobber has secured his order from the retailer.

However, these deceptive high list prices are not air to the consumer, who does not, and, in reality, is not ever expected to pay these fancy list prices.

When the season opens for the sale of such goods, with their misleading but alluring high list prices, the retailer begins to realize his responsibilities, and grapples with the situation as best he can, by offering "special discounts," which vary with local trade conditions.

Under this system of merchandising, the profits to both the manufacturer and the jobber are assured; but as there is no stability maintained in the prices to the consumer, the keen competition amongst the local dealers invariably leads to a demoralized cutting of prices by which the profits of the retailer are practically eliminated.

This demoralization always reacts on the manufacturer. The jobber insists on lower, and still lower, prices. The manufacturer, in his turn, meets this demand for the lowering of prices by the only way open to him, viz.: the cheapening and degrading of the quality of his product.

The foregoing conditions became so intolerable that, 13 years ago, in 1899, A. G. Spalding & Bros. determined to rectify this demoralization in the Athletic Goods Trade, and inaugurated what has since become known as "The Spalding Policy."

The "Spalding Policy" eliminates the jobber entirely, so far as Spalding Goods are concerned, and the retail dealer secures the supply of Spalding Athletic Goods direct from the manufacturer by which the retail dealer is assured a fair, legitimate and certain profit on all Spalding Athletic Goods, and the consumer is assured a Standard Quality and is protected from imposition.

The "Spalding Policy" is decidedly for the interest and protection of the users of Athletic Goods, and acts in two ways:

First.—The user is assured of genuine Official Standard Athletic Goods and the same prices to everybody.

Second.—As manufacturers, we can proceed with confidence in purchasing at the proper time, the very best raw materials required in the manufacture of our various goods, well ahead of their respective seasons, and this enables us to provide the necessary quantity and absolutely maintain the Spalding Standard of Quality.

All retail dealers handling Spalding Athletic Goods are requested to supply consumers at our regular printed catalogue prices—neither more nor less—the same prices that similar goods are sold for in our New York, Chicago and other stores.

All Spalding dealers, as well as users of Spalding Athletic Goods, are treated exactly alike, and no special rebates or discriminations are allowed to anyone.

This briefly, is the "Spalding Policy," which has already been in successful operation for the past 13 years, and will be indefinitely continued.

In other words, "The Spalding Policy" is a "square deal" for everybody.

Standard Quality

An article that is universally given the appellation "Standard" is thereby conceded to be the criterion, to which are compared all other things of a similar nature. For instance, the Gold Dollar of the United States is the Standard unit of currency, because it must legally contain a specific proportion of pure gold, and the fact of its being Genuine is guaranteed by the Government Stamp thereon. As a protection to the users of this currency against counterfeiting and other tricks, considerable money is expended in maintaining a Secret Service Bureau of Experts. Under the law, citizen manufacturers must depend to a great extent upon Trade-Marks and similar devices to protect themselves against counterfeit products—without the aid of "Government Detectives" or "Public Opinion" to assist them.

Consequently the "Consumer's Protection" against misrepresentation and "inferior quality" rests entirely upon the integrity and responsibility of the "Manufacturer."

A. G. Spalding & Bros. have, by their rigorous attention to "Quality," for thirty-four years, caused their Trade-Mark to become known throughout the world as a Guarantee of Quality as dependable in their field as the U. S. Currency is in its field.

The necessity of upholding the Guarantee of the Spalding Trade-Mark and maintaining the Standard Quality of their Athletic Goods, is, therefore, as obvious as is the necessity of the Government in maintaining a Standard Currency.

Thus each consumer is not only insuring himself but also protecting other consumers when he assists a Reliable Manufacturer in upholding his Trade-Mark and all that it stands for. Therefore, we urge all users of our Athletic Goods to assist us in maintaining the Spalding Standard of Excellence, by insisting that our Trade-Mark be plainly stamped on all athletic goods which they buy, because without this precaution our best efforts towards maintaining Standard Quality and preventing fraudulent substitution will be ineffectual.

Manufacturers of Standard Articles invariably suffer the reputation of being high-priced, and this sentiment is fostered and emphasized by makers of "inferior goods," with whom low prices are the main consideration.

A manufacturer of recognized Standard Goods, with a reputation to uphold and a guarantee to protect, must necessarily have higher prices than a manufacturer of cheap goods, whose idea of and basis of a claim for Standard Quality depends principally upon the eloquence of the salesman.

We know from experience that there is no quicksand more unstable than poverty in quality—and we avoid this quicksand by Standard Quality.
